PORT NEAR ICHANG IS LOOTED IN NEW RIOTS

Foreign Hongs Stripped Of Valuables And Cash By Troops

DISORDER ENDED

Force From Ichang Is Ordered Out To Put End To Uprising

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Ichang, Nov. 26.—Itu, which is a district city situated about 30 miles down the great river was looted by the troops kept in barracks there on the night of the 21-22nd inst.

The troops concerned were the 9th Regiment of the 5th Brigade, and their commander was Colonel Chang Pu-yu—in Itu at the time of the occurrence.

It is considered that two companies of the regiment, both of which were in quarters outside the city wall, took part in the looting. They began shortly after midnight to fire off their rifles. This was probably a signal to the troops quartered within the city walls to join in, but they did not respond.

The principal business street in Itu is outside the West Gate of the city, and it was this street that suffered. In all 25 shops were entered, and looted, mostly of the ready money that was to be found in thier strong boxes and rooms.

An attempt was made to set fire to the premises occupied by the Asiatic Petroleum Co., but the employees were able to extinguish the fire before it had assumed any great dimensions.

TAKE CASH STRINGS

The greatest amount of money was taken from the temporary dwellers in an inn called Teh Hsin Hsiang. The total is computed at 20,000 strings of cash and was the property of merchants who had recently come to purchase goat skins.

The next serious loss was sustained by the agent of the Asiatic Petroleum Co., who reported that he had lost in notes, silver and copper an aggregate of nearly $8,000: the agent of the Standard Oil Co. lost 6,000 tiao, about $3,500: the agent of the B. A. T. Co, something like $400, and the looters helped themselves to a good supply of cigarettes. These three were the only foreigners to suffer.

The only person wounded was a man named T'seng in the Standard Oil Company's premises. He was shot through the leg.

Another merchant, who is agent for the Nanyang Bros. Co. and also agent for a Japanese firm that purchases wood oil was relieved of over $2,000 and two gold rings. A smaller merchant lost about 1,000 strings of cash and the looters took his wife's jewelry, actually taking her marriage ring off her finger.

Later about 20 or 30 of the men took to boats and crossed the river to the village of Peh-Yang, where they looted three shops and the Telegraph office. Two rifles were recovered at this village by the police, and later a party of loyal soldiers who came after the mutineers, were besought to follow them up on the road to Tang-Yang, but they refused to do so.

The looting continued for two hours or so, when the Colonel turned out with some loyal troops, and stopped the plundering.

One under-officer is reported to have been shot by the mutineers when they went to him to demand ammunition, which he refused to hand over to them.

Next day a company of soldiers was sent down from Ichang, and it is now reported that the Kweilee, which is bringing up 600 more troops from Hankow, has been ordered to stop at Itu, and disembark them there.

Mother Of "President" De Valera, Of Ireland, Lives In U.S.A.

MRS. Charles E. Wheelwright, of Rochester, N. Y., the mother of Eammon de Valera. Very few Americans are aware of the fact that the mother of "Ireland's First Citizen" lives in the U. S. A. Mrs. Wheelwright makes her home in a modest little house in Rochester, N. Y. When her illustrious son came to America he frequently visited his mother in her Rochester home.

SIX GERMANS TO SOUND THE OTHER POWERS

(Reuter's Service)

Berlin, Nov. 30.—Herr Stinnes has reported the results of his visit to London to a meeting of the Imperial Union of German Industries, which has decided to adopt the proposal of the Chancellor, Dr. Wirth, to appoint a committee of six financiers and Industrialists to get into touch with British and American economic circles.

This with a view to opening credits, not merely to assure the January reparation payment, but also to find new methods of payment to prevent Germany again falling into a condition making default possible.

FRENCH BARBER BLUE TO DIE

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, Nov. 30.—Landru, the French "Bluebeard," who is charged with fifteen murders and as many cases of swindling was found guilty today of murder, forgery and theft and sentenced to death.

Later.—Immediately after sentence of death was passed on Landru, the jurymen unanimously signed a recommendation for mercy, in favor of life imprisonment, which, it is believed, will save his head.

THAT SOUTHERN MOVEMENT

What Do You Know About Quemoy?

WHAT do you know about the heart of the movement which Dr. Sun Yat-sen and General Chen Chiung-ming are leading? Not much, probably. But your lack of information is excusable.

Few, even among the old hands, in China have much understanding of it.

Readers will recall the brilliant series of articles on the Siberian-Japanese situation and on the ping-pong politics of Peking from the pen of Mr. Orrin Keith.

This searching mind is now at work in Southern China for THE CHINA PRESS. Mr. Keith is going all the way through the Southern Constitutionalist movement.

Shanghai Day Attracts Big Crowd At Auto Show; Minstrels Are On Tonight

Nearly two thousand people crowded the dancing pavilion last night at the Shanghai Auto Show, for the closing celebration of "Shanghai Day," and according to the reports of the exhibitors, yesterday was the most successful day of the motor exposition since the opening.

Reports of good sales of motor cars, tires and accessories were made last night, proving, the Show Committee said, that the efforts and expense of producing the fine display af automobiles and machinery, will be more than repaid in the prospects of present and future business.

During the evening six-all star Shanghai entertainers, selected from the best of the talent that has appeared in recent months, presented a clever and interesting program.

Attractive Program Given By Local Amateurs Last Night To Largest Attendance Thus Far —Exhibitors Happy

The afternoon tea dansant drew a large number of pleasure seekers who had viewed the exhibits during the day, but it was not until evening that the crowds began to surge through the doors.

Mr. G. M. James led the feature program during the dance intervals and in fine tenor voice sang his "Trumpeteer" and "Rosary" songs. The "Al Jolson" of Shanghai, Mr. Cody, sang "All by Myself" but he was not lonesome when it came to the applause. His singing set the spirit of fun for the evening and added life to an already lively crowd.

NAVY MEN PLEASE

The U. S. Navy was represented by Puck and Brock, two of the American sailors from the destroyer Tracy, at present in Shanghai. Their act was a blackface comedy argument between a coon bellhop and a "down South swell." The dancing of the two deepsea entertainers was a reminder of old plantation days.

"Peggy O'Neil" according to the song of Aaron Glemby was a divine coleen, and the song divided honors with his eccentric dancing, which was the hit of the Shrine Minstrel Show.

One of the best bits of the program was the act staged by Silas Brothers, Mena and Arthur. Their turn included a series of grotesque imitations, a Sikh policeman on duty in Shanghai, Italian opera singers and recitations in Oriental dialects.

A feature of the evening was the singing and selection of the winning song of THE CHINA PRESS-EVENING STAR contest.

MINSTRELS ON TONIGHT

The program for tonight will be staged by the Nomad Oasis of the Mystic Shrine who will present the leading hits of their recent Minstrel show success. The same costumes used in the production given in the Olympic theater will be used.

The Shrine entertainment will be on the order of a cabaret show. All of the members of the cast will be grouped at one table near the stage and will vary the dance numbers by giving true darktown jubilation items.

Aaron Glemby will appear in his "Malindy" costume and will also present a new eccentric dance, which he calls his "soft shoe dance."

Preparations for the masque ball of tomorrow night have been practically completed, Manager Ellis said yesterday. He will have charge of the cafe details.

Waltz Song Wins In Press Contest

A crowning feature of last night's entertainment program at the Auto Show was the singing and selection of the winning song of THE CHINA PRESS-EVENING STAR contest.

The two songs to which the competition had been narrowed—"Hoot" and "Goodbye Blues"—were sung to the big crowd by Mr. Aaron Glemby, "Eddie Leonard" of the recent Shrine Minstrel Show, in wonderfully taking style. Following the rendition the singer called for a ballot by the audience and "Goodbye Blues," the waltz number, was nominated by a big majority.

Mr. Glemby then introduced Mr. Mina Silas, writer of the music, and Miss Eleanor Kemp, author of the lyric, and while the orchestra played the song over the collaborators danced to its strains. Mr. Silas is well known locally for his entertainment work and Miss Kemp is the representative in the East for the Associated Producers, the biggest combine of American moving picture impressarios.

For finale the crowd, which received the verdict with great enthusiasm, sang the words.

CITY SHIMMIES SANS VOLITION AS QUAKE COMES

Shanghai shimmed and shook for about twenty seconds last night without the urge of jazz bands or ague. The town in fact didn't have any option in the matter. It just happened to be within the jurisdiction of an earthquake.

Telegrams received from other points in this province indicate that the shock was severe in other localities, but thus far no reports of serious damage have been received. Shocks reported vary in number. According to some observers there were three distinct disturbances between 6:50 and 7:45 p.m. Others report feeling two tremors. The Siccawei Observatory seismograph recorded a quake at about 7 o'clock, but no details, as to center or extent of the phenomenon were available at a late hour last night.

Numerous subscribers telephoned THE CHINA PRESS office last night to report undignified capers on the part of electric lights, pictures and other suspended furnishings of their households.

(Staff Wire To THE CHINA PRESS)

Soochow, Dec. 1.—A slight earthquake was felt at Soochow at 7 o'clock tonight. There was no damage. The temblor lasted for about twenty seconds. It was the first shock felt here in eight years.

Yangchow, Dec. 1.—A severe earthquake shock was recorded here at 7:50 o'clock tonight. It is not yet known whether any damage was occasioned.

Beatty Says Conference Is Sure To Win Peace

(Reuter's Service)

NEW YORK, Nov. 30.—Admiral Earl Beatty on leaving for home expressed in an interview the opinion that the Conference could already be regarded as a success, and that Britain is satisfied with the "five-five-three" naval programme.

Asked what would happen if Japan insisted on increasing her ratio, Earl Beatty is reported to have replied that, the other nations would do likewise.

Pagoda Days And Ways Now Sent To Graze

By Elsie McCormick

To the list of such questions as, "How old is Ann?", "How long is a piece of string?", and "How is a mouse when it spins?", foreign residents of China are inclined to add, "Why is a pagoda?"

In the eyes of people with purely utilitarian leanings, the pagoda ranks in usefulness with a whip-socket on an automobile, or the fluted paper trimmings on a hotel chop. If it could be put into service as the background for an electric sign advertising pagoda hosiery or Daggermint gum, or else used for the attachment of sirens to call out the Fire Department, there might be something to it. But when the foreigner with a commercial angle on the scenery finds that the natives aren't even enthusiastic about employing it as a sign-board for hair-oil or cigarette posters, he concludes that the Chinese have far to go before they reach the vast and lofty heights of Western civilisation.

ONLY MANY LIDS

Over in Japan we were told that the pagoda idea originated from the custom of carrying one umbrella on top of the other over the heads of officials. The more prominent a man was, the more umbrellas he had. If a man went down the street with eight umbrellas in America, he'd soon be telling the desk-sergeant his middle name, but in ancient Japan when officials went calling people could only clear out the hat-racks and hope for the best.

In China, however, we heard that pagodas were built originally after Indian models in order to house the relics of the Buddha. Judging from the number of relics distributed about the East, the divinity in question was endowed with a hundred or two complete skeletons and enough hair to equip the Ostermoor mattress works. Some of the relics, however, are second-hand; Buddhist priests and nuns of particular sanctity often being honored by having a fragment of their chief stored temporarily in the cranium. During life the sacred morsel endows them with a halo and after death it may be secured by the devout through the simple process of burning their bones.

BIT IS PAGODAID

The bit that remains intact after the cremation is part of the Buddha's duplex skeletons and therefore rates a pagoda.

Though considered by most foreigners to be completely typical of China, pagodas were not introduced until 300 A.D. and hence are comparative innovations. In some dialects they are still spoken of as "foreign buildings." During the course of the centuries, however, their original purpose was lost sight of to a certain extent and the builders of many of them forgot that they really ought to

FIRE ABOARD SHIP GIVES BRIGADES STRENUOUS TASK

A fire which threatened to destroy one of the smaller of the China Navigation Company's fleet of coasting steamers last night occupied the attention of the brigades of the French Concession, the International Settlement and of the Customs fire [illegible] before it was finally got under control.

The blaze was discovered shortly before 8 o'clock in the hold of the steamer Kwangchi, lying at the China Navigation Company's wharf off the French Bund. The brigade of the concession turned out duly to find that the blaze was deep in the hold, where loose cargo was stored, and that the ship's fire crew of coolie pumpers had been driven off by smoke, while the flames had gained a threatening headway. The call for the settlement brigade was then sounded.

Fire Chief M. W. Pett answered the call with one machine, a fire float, and other smaller apparatus, but was not able to give material assistance due to the secluded location of the fire and the dense smoke. The Customs fire float, which in the meantime had come to the ship's side, solved the problem by flooding the Kwangchi's hold.

The damage by fire is believed to have been slight, though, fire officials said last night, the damage by water may run into big figures.

The cause of the fire has not yet been learned.

Tokio, Nov. 30.—According to The Tokio Nichi Nichi a decision which means an indefinite postponement of the Japanese evacuation of the Maritime Province of Siberia was reached on Monday by the Diplomatic Advisory Council.

The Nichi Nichi asserts further that the Advisory Council has approved the project to send to Siberia the Eighth Division of troops to relieve the Eleventh Division which now has served two years. It is stated that the sending of a relief force in August was delayed in the hope that an agreement that would permit complete evacuation of Japanese troops would grow out of the Dairen Conference and the sending of a considerable relief force at this time can only mean that hopes for any agreement at Dairen definitely have been abandoned. The forces of the Japanese therefore will remain in Siberia at least several months longer.

The Nichi Nichi says that the Tokio Government is now convinced that no good can come through waiting for Chita to agree to terms that have been offered. Reports from Russian sources deny the Japanese charges that Chita has demonstrated a lack of sincerity in the Dairen negotiations and these reports make charges of the same character against the Japanese. It is fairly apparent that Tokio has entirely abandoned all intention of quitting Russian territory in the near future.

TO REPLY GERMANS

Berlin, Dec. 1.—An official statement is being prepared by Germany in reply to Briand's speech before the disarmament conference. In it, the German government will dispute the existence of a strong military establishment here as charge by Briand and will offer positive guarantees to France.

In the meantime, the British ambassador is returning to London to report the fact that it is improbable that Germany will be able to meet the reparation payments which fall due in January, since the German efforts to arrange credits in the United States and England have failed.

Washington, Dec. 1.—The issue of naval ratios has now been definitely placed before the conference. Admiral Baron Kato today formally presented to Secretary Hughes and Balfour the proposal that the national security of Japan demands a minimum ratio of seventy percent.

It is understood that the British and American delegations are standing together for the original Hughes proposals of five-three-five and regard the Japanese proposal as unacceptable.

(Trans-Pacific Public Ledger—China Press Exclusive Service)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30—Despite advices from Tokio that Japan will insist on maintaining naval armaments up to seventy per cent of the strength of the United States and Great Britain, persistent reports are being circulated here that Admiral Baron Kato, of the Japanese delegation, has decided to agree

The belief soon became widespread that pagodas attract prosperity like magnets and that they could do more to boom business than a Rotary Club or an annual Old Home Week. They were also credited with a special influence on the spirits of wind and water, serving as an insurance policy against floods, typhoons, or lighting. A town with a pagoda in its backyard could get about fifty percent more for its building lots and suburban additions than those merely equipped with a few idol shelters. Likewise students from cities owning Chinese Woolworth buildings gained a reputation for higher marks in the literary tests than candidates hailing from the uncut bamboo.

Rated with the Colossus of Rhodes, the Hanging Gardens of Babylon, and New York's Coney Island as one of the Seven Wonders of the World, the Porcelain Pagoda of Nanking was undoubtedly the most famous of China's skyscrapers. Its cost in time was nineteen years and in money about $3,300,000. Slabs of glazed porcelain in green, red, yellow, and white covered a brick framework of nine stones and 150 bells hung from the roof. It was illuminated once a year with 140 lamps, thus giving rise to the popular Carlton phrase, "lit up like a pagoda."

During one evening of brilliance, the lamps used to lap up 85 gallons of oil, which fact is noted with regret by foreign oil campanies which didn't have the forethought to settle in China until after the pagoda was destroyed. The real purpose of the illumination, according to Buddhist sages, was to perform a meritorious act by saving the life of fish. By reflecting itself in all adjacent waterways, it scared the fish into staying far below the surface, prevented the fishermen from catching them, and therefore saved their lives. A similar purpose led to the lighting up of other pagodas, tradition stating that the illumination of a pagoda in Soochow prevented the fish from rising in Taihu Lake thirty li away. Probably it was Buddhistic pectoral pity that first gave rise to the expression "poor fish."

The Porcelain Pagoda was finally blown up by gunpowder in 1856, when certain leaders of the Taiping Rebellion suspected that some of their number were meeting in the building to plan treachery against the cause. It had four precious jewels on its roof—one to protect it against rain, one against fire, one against dust, and another against wind, but somehow the builders forgot to introduce a stone that would vaccinate it against gun-powder.

One of the oldest buildings of the type in China is the Wild Goose Pagoda in Shensi. According to Chinese legend, a number of Buddhist monks were very busy resting one day, when a flock of wild geese flew over their heads. Feeling too exhausted by their occupation to reach for the family blunderbus, a monk of the party exclaimed, "I wish one of these geese would perform a benevolent act." A goose accordingly fell down dead, and the monks commemorated its willingness to oblige by building a pagoda over it, which seems to us a lot more trouble than going after a sling-shot in the first place.

Another famous pagoda overlooks the city of Tsinanfu. As late as 1890, missionaries in the city were refused permission to build a two-story hospital on the ground that the structure might cut the invisible cable which anchored the city to the pagoda and therefore cause the town to drift down the Yellow River to the sea.

A pagoda in Soochow is said to have two snakes, one blue and one white, buried in its foundations, but as we don't know much about the circumstances under which they were first observed, we wouldn't feel called upon to include the fact in a text-book on zoology. Other frequently described buildings of this type are the Loonghwa Pagoda of Shanghai, built in the ninth century, A.D.; a leaning pagoda on the Shanghai Nanking Railroad, with a slant that makes the Tower of Pisa look as straight as the back of an army officer receiving his first salute, and a brick pagoda located near the reputed grave of Mohammed's uncle in Canton, which was used as a minaret for calling China's first Moslem converts to the adoration of Allah.

It is probable, however, that China has built its last pagoda. The Chinese in Macao suggested erecting one in 1821 for furthering the prosperity of the port and the records state that the Portuguese governor contributed a hundred dollars. But the building was never put up nor has the construction of a pagoda elsewhere in China been considered seriously since. Undoubtedly China's pagodas of the future will be straight red shafts with black smoke smudging the sky.

Wedding

CROW-MANN

One of the most imposing events of the local social season occurred last night when Miss Gladys Elizabeth Mann, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. E. Mann, was married to Mr. John Bradford Crow, Jr., agent of the Pacific Mail Steamship Company here.

The ceremony was held at the home of the bride's parents, 433 Avenue Joffre, at 8:30 o'clock last evening and was followed by a reception attended by several hundred guests.

The home was beautifully decorated for the event, the room in which the wedding service was read being banked and hung with white chrysanthemums and greens while variously shaded chrysanthemums and greenery were incorporated into a colorful decorative scheme for the other rooms.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Luther Freeman under an arch of white blossoms while six young girls, Misses Dorothy Mann—sister of the bride—Virginia Atkinson, Carolyn Doremus, Dorothy Battersby, Molly Millard and Eleanor Battersby, in dresses of pastel shades and carrying shepher's crooks bound with white satin ribbon and yellow tea roses, formed an aisle down which the bride and groom walked.

The bride's gown was of white satin embroidered in pearls with a train of net, inserted in white satin and embroidered with silver chenille and pearls. She carried a shower bouquet of white tea roses.

The train bearer was Master Benjamin Haile, Jr., dressed in a white satin suit, and little Miss Marilyn McRae was flower girl and wore a dress of pale blue and pale pink chiffon.

The matron of honor, Mrs. R. F. Evans, wore a dress of salmon colored chiffon embroidered with crystal beads and carried a bouquet of pink tea roses, and the bride's mother wore a dress of royal purple velvet and silver cloth. The bride's going away was of brown dugveteen with hat to match.

Mr. B. C. Haile acted as best man.

Music was furnished at the reception by the Municipal Orchestra and the decorations were by the Lewis nurseries. The catering was done by the Carlton Cafe, under the direction of Mr. Ellis.

Battleship Mutsu Goes Into Service

Literary Section Of Woman's Club Has Meeting Today

The Literary Department of the American Woman's Club will meet at 4:30 o'clock today in the Royal Asiatic Hall, Museum Road. Two papers will be presented, one by Miss Catherine Groesbeck on "The Glorious Yu and His Dynasty," and the second by Mrs. W. S. Beaman on "Ancient Chinese Records and How They Were Preserved."

At The Victoria

The film, one of the latest and greatest productions to grace Shanghai's silver-sheets, is from Elinor Glyn's drama, "Tremendous." It features the beautiful Gloria Swanson, and a supporting cast of popular stars of the silent drama.

One of the particular episodes which will appeal to Shanghai audiences is that which features Mr. Germanoff, famous Russian artist, who is featured in a series of dances in the great dancing scenes.

"The Great Moment" was brought to Shanghai by Mr. P. F. Crawley. It attracted record audiences at the Olympic Theater during the four-day run which it has just closed there.

Obituary

MR. M. M. DENEGRI

At the funeral services over the body of Mr. Mario Massimo Denegri yesterday afternoon a special detachment of Sikh constables attended the coffin and followed the procession to the graveside in respect to the deceased's membership in the Special Constabulary of the International Settlement. A service was read first in St. Joseph's Church by the Rev. Father Sernand Scellier, and later at the graveside in the Building Well Cemetery.

The funeral was attended by a large number of mourners. The pall bearers were Messrs. A. J. Welch, E. T. Byrne, E. Denegri, E. J. Cornfoot, Pansili and Paturel.

Floral offerings were numerous. Those sending wreathes included the Shanghai Municipal Police, the Shanghai Municipal Police Headquarters Officers, the Italian Club, Reiss and Co., Bianchi Co., and about 50 individual mourners.

GERMANY NOT YET SANGUINE UPON THE MORATORIUM

(French Wireless through Reuter)

Paris, Nov. 30.—The Agence Havas learns that scepticism prevails in German financial circles on the subject of the moratorium, favored by Britain, and on the possible results of Dr. Rathenau's visit to London.

It is believed, moreover, that, while Herr Stinnes may perhaps have succeeded in obtaining something in his private interests in London, he has failed as far as reparations are concerened, which seem to have held a secondary place in his consideration.

The reparations commission has approved a plan for the delivery of tar and tar products to France by Germany.

CRAIG ASKING FOR RESULTS

(Special To The China Press)

London, Nov. 30.—Sir James Craig, of the Ulster Parliament, today gave out a statement in which he said: "Let Sinn Fein first prove its ability to govern along constitutional lines and let it win our confidence by practical proof that it can harness to something consitutional. Then in course of time the Irish governments might coalesce of their own free wills."

PLAN NEW OFFER

London, Nov. 30.—It was authoritatively announced that Mr. Lloyd George will endeavor to formulate a new proposal for the Irish settlement following Ulster's refusal of the late offer.

How THE EVENING STAR Will Give Away An Automobile

The EVENING STAR will give away FREE at the Auto Show a brand-new 1921-model Dodge five-passenger touring car. The cost of this automobile is Taels 2,000.

Here is how it will be given away:

Any man, woman or child who subscribes to THE EVENING STAR for a period of three months at a special rate of $5.00 will be given a numbered receipt. France Balks At Germans Sending Men To Arms Parley

(French Wireless through Reuter)

Paris, Nov. 29.—The Temps understands that M. Viviani in the course of a private conversation, touching on the question of the German indemnities, declared that, if the question of Germany's debt to France, came up for discussion at the Washington Conference, it might be considered on the basis of the Powers guaranteeing the execution of the proposed arrangements.

Participation in the Conference by Germany at the moment appeared useless unless the question of reparations and indemnities were brought up, which seemed impossible. Moreover, Germany no longer possessed islands in the Pacific, she was in no way interested in the question of naval armament or in the question of the limitation of land armament, and therefore the presence of Germany delegates at Washington appeared useless to M. Viviani.

THE FIFTH WISE MAN
"I'll wait a while before buying my life insurance," said the first wise man. He had to pay 15 per cent more because the cost had increased.
"Next year will be just as good," said the second wise man. He died six months later.
"I'm in no hurry—I can get insurance any time," said the third wise man. He discovered his error later, when the doctor told him he was uninsurable.
"I'll have more money for insurance in a couple of years," said the fourth wise man. But a reckless chauffeur ran over him, and the day when he can buy insurance has passed.
Now there was a FIFTH man and he bought his Life Insurance from the Asia Life Insurance Company when he had the chance. He isn't worrying any. Neither is his family.

Aviator's Neck Freezes 31,000 Feet Up In The Air

(The following story tells of the sensations of the man who has been further into the sky than any man living.)

BY GEORGE KIRSCH

Paris, Oct. 2.—I took wing from Bourget Field at 6:30 a.m., in a strictly "shop" aeroplane.

The sky was somewhat cloudy, but in spite of that I decided to make the attempt. I felt certain that it would be possible to climb 500 feet higher than I had done in an earlier flight. I took off, strongly tossed at the start by some tricky eddies of heat waves. In eleven minutes I attained an altitude of over 15,000 feet. My ascent was extremely rapid. In thirty-eight minutes I climbed 19,500 feet. At 16,500 feet I breathed a small quantity of oxygen, and constantly increased the amount as I continued to mount higher.

In one hour and fifteen minutes the altimeter showed I was at nearly 23,000 feet. Then I had the first trouble. Turning my head from right to left to peer around the wind-shield, which had become frosted, what was my horror to perceive I could not turn it back in place again. The muscles refused to function. For the moment I was terrified. Instinctively I opened the oxygen bottle and breathed a very strong dose. I felt better immediately and could turn my head around to a natural position.

After this I mounted more slowly. I was surrounded by a sort of halo and felt as if I was approaching the sun. Oh, how cold it was! —and this in spite of everything which had been done to make me impervious to the frost of the higher heavens. The thermometer registered 67 degrees below zero. In spite of this I decided to climb still higher. At slightly over 31,000 feet the last drop of gasoline was exhausted and the motor stopped dead. I descended in dizzy spirals to a height of 26,000 feet and then volplaned slowly.

A few moments later I landed in a field of trefles at Champaubert, bordering on the road from Paris to Nancy. My descent from the highest altitude ever attained by man was achieved in only twenty minutes! My ear drums were bursting and I experienced a profound depression after the exaltation of the upper atmospheres.

As there was no transportation from Champaubert to take me to Paris, I was standing near my aeroplane about 7 o'clock in the evening. The sky was overcast and a storm was evidently coming up quickly. I asked a peasant to aid me to secure the plane, as the wind began to blow furiously and there was grave danger the machine would be ruined. At this moment I saw a Goliath flying overhead at a low altitude, on its way from Paris to Amsterdam. A few minutes later it landed in the same field with one propeller broken by the rain. The pilot was an old friend named Coupet, who was carrying six American passengers. Needless to say, they continued the journey by road.

The storm broke a few moments later, uprooting trees and overturning haystacks in its mad fury. Yet the Goliath and the Nieuport came through it without any damage.

This, coupled with my years of experience as a flyer, convinces me that passenger flying today is as safe, if not safer, than voyaging by ocean on a palatial liner.

According to the aero rules, I know my performance is not valid; but still it exists. I am going to make the attempt again. It is necessary to land at the point from which one takes off if the record is to be considered official. In my opinion, this is absolutely impossible.

CENTRAL GARAGE HIRE CAR SERVICE FEATURE AT SHOW

Hundreds who have been to the Automobile Show and remained until the early hours of the morning have expressed pleasure at the enterprise of the Central Garage and the manager of its hire car department, Mr. N. Greenberg.

The Central maintains a fleet of Overlands, open and closed cars, on Avenue Joffre so that visitors to the big exposition at Verdun Gardens are able to secure automobiles without trouble.

Mr. Greenberg has personally looked after the service and is on duty until the early hours of the morning in order to accommodate the hundreds of patrons.

Palace Is Passing From Art To Arts

Former Kaiser's Magnificent Home Becoming Museum Of Modern Crafts

Berlin, Oct. 15.—Seventy chambers and halls of the former imperial Hohenzollern palace have been changed into a new museum of arts and crafts and were opened to the public in September. It is hardly noticeable that twenty large moving vans of furniture which the Kaiser and his sons claimed as their personal property have been removed. The ex-Kaiser had most of the removed furniture sent to his new home in Holland. The rest furnished new households for the ex-Crown Prince and his brothers. Still, there is enough luxury represented in the historic and antique furniture which the state retained to give one an idea of what the Hohenzollern court looked like before the flight to Holland.

Nearly every chamber has some characteristic feature designed or installed under the personal direction of the Kaiser. There is the famous porcelain chamber containing a valuable collection of antique and historic porcelain, gifts of English and Russian Kings and Queens. Other chambers hold valuable collections of Persian and Turkish rugs, glassware, paintings, sculpture and other treasures.

Then there are the huge, magnificent halls in which only royalty was entertained. To these belong the "Chambers of the Princess," "Royal Chambers," the "Hall of the Knights," the "White Hall" and the imperial library. The ceilings of those halls and chambers are decorated with portraits of old German masters like Schlueter and Eosander.

Many works written by Frederick the Great, of whom the Kaiser always considered himself a disciple, are to be found among the numerous volumes of the Kaiser's former library. Many shelves are crowded too with works of modern German, English and French authors; even the leading authors of the smal-

Side by side with these relics of imperial Germany are now to be found the exhibitions of Germany's youngest artists, and sooner or later the once imperial palace of the Hohenzollerns will change entirely into a museum of modern arts and crafts.

SEVEN HOUSES BURNED

Seven Chinese thatched houses were destroyed by fire shortly before 9 o'clock last night in the Edinburgh-Kinnear Roads district, just over the International Settlement boundary line.

The Sinza division answered the call but the fire had too much headway on their arrival to permit of more than confining the flames to the houses already ablaze. No one was injured. The damage excepting to the houses, was slight.

Is Your Baby Gaining in Weight?

One of the surest signs that a baby is making good progress is steady increase in weight. After the first week there should be regular and rapid growth if the baby is being properly nourished.

The most common cause of failure to gain weight is malnutrition, the food is either deficient in quality or quantity, or the digestive organs are not doing their work properly. When the stomach or bowels are at fault all that is necessary, usually, to set matters right is the administration of Baby's Own Tablets, the pleasant-tasting Canadian remedy for little ones of all ages. No fear need be entertained as to the wisdom of giving these Tablets, because they are guaranteed under a Government Analyst's certificate, to contain not a single particle of opiate, narcotic, or other injurious drug, and to be equally helpful and harmless to the youngest infant as to the child of 8 years old or more.

Baby's Own Tablets are just the right remedy for infantile constipation, colic, indigestion, diarrhoea, simple fever, teething troubles and worms. They bring natural, restful, health-promoting sleep, restore appetite and make the baby thrive. Of chemists or post free 30 cents the vial, from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., 69 Szechuen Road, Shanghai.

NO SOLDIER WOULD START NEW WAR, SAYS WEYGAND

Paris, Oct. 15.—Being asked what he thought of the conference on disarmament which is to be held at Washington, General Weygand (Marshal Foch's principal collaborator) said that this conference was intended rather to solve the question of the Pacific than to bring about a general disarmament.

"The French point of view on this question is very simple," he said. "During the peace negotiations France was promised the guarantee of the Anglo-American pact. You know what happened. This pact was not ratified ultimately, and France had to find other guarantees for her future security by the adoption of precautionary military measures.

"We still remember the lesson of recent events, and therefore we wish to act cautiously in all decisions which would aim at abating the power of France. Far from us is any aggressive or offensive conception, but we want to be allowed to keep our revolver in our pocket in order to defend ourselves.

NO NEW WAR WANTED

"Indeed, people are mightily mistaken who ascribe to us any imperialistic aims. We are none of us imperialist nor even militarist. We have no aspiration of conquest; and even the soldiers here are soldiers but not militarist. They wish less than anybody else to start a fresh conflict.

"We fought the last struggle to a finish—that was our duty and that was our task. We had to save our country and also to assure the freedom of the world and the future welfare of the peoples. But we do not like war, and we wish to avert the return of such a dreadful calamity.

"One thing must be repeated over and over again: If there had not been the French Army, if there had not been the military preparedness of France—for in modern warfare a thorough training is necessary—not only our country would have been enslaved by Germany but also the whole world would have been subjected to the Prussian domination. The consciousness of having preserved the world's freedom will remain the finest title of glory for France and also her most equitable pride.

REDUCE MILITARY EXPENSES

"But recent events oblige us also to act with utmost care and not to dispense with military precautions. It is obvious that the nation dreams but one thing; to reduce our military expenses, which bear so heavily upon our citizens, by reducing the force of our contingents. But at the same time the French will never consent to disarm until Germany is definitely and really disarmed. Our former adversaries are more than ever determined to get their revenge as soon as they have succeeded in throwing off the Allied control. One must be blind not to notice the militarist spirit which prevails still on the other side of the Rhine.

"It is equally obvious," continued General Weygand, "that nothing will prevent Germany from resuming her military preparations as soon as the Allied missions of control have left the country in some twenty years. And this fact also, as well as the nearness of Germany, obliges us to remain on our guard.

"Even if France were to obtain the guarantee of the Anglo-American pact, could she dispense with taking any other guarantees? Would this pact alone constitute a sufficient protection for her security? In the great war, the United Kingdom sided with us from the very first day of the conflict. The English fought gallantly shoulder to shoulder with us until the close of the fighting, and exactly as if they had been tied to us by a formal treaty of alliance. But their military preparations took nevertheless a certain time.

ALLIANCE INVALUABLE

"America entered the war in 1917, but the force of her participation was really felt only in 1918. During the first year of the war France was, so to speak, alone.

"I am not speaking just now from the moral point of view. I merely consider the material side of the question. From the moral point of view, the alliance of France, Great Britain and America would be invaluable of course. And if a pact of guarantee had existed among these three powers in 1914 the war could perhaps have been averted. But considering the question from the material point of view, one must recognise that notwithstanding any pact of guarantee, France would still have to bear alone the brunt of a new attack.

Lowell 'Disarmed' Reportorial Army

Seized Their Notebooks To Prevent Them 'Taking' Lord Bryce's Address

Cambridge, Mass., Oct. 15.—President A. Lawrence Lowell of Harvard University, in asking newspaper men not to report a recent address by Viscount James Bryce at the Harvard Union, used his own censorship.

Just before he introduced the distinguished British publicist, Dr. Lowell leaned over to the press tables and told the reporters it was Lord Bryce's wish that none of his remarks be published, inasmuch as it was to be an intimate talk to the undergraduates.

To make doubly sure Dr. Lowell, with a smile, took the notebooks from reporters and stuffed them into his pocket. Then, with the repertorial guns spiked, he introduced the speaker.

After Lord Bryce's address, which dealt in an informal way with university life in England, Germany and America, and emphasised the need for educated men in public affairs, President Lowell, smiling again, returned the books. The newspaper men did not print the address.

BASKETBALL SEASON OPENS WITH FINE GAMES

The 1921-1922 season of basketball was opened on the Chinese Y.M.C.A. floor last night with the playing of the first two games of the winter schedule of 90 games.

The Bearcats, a "Y" team met and easily beat the five of the Shanghai American School, which was greatly handicapped in size and weight, while the fast little team of the Shanghai Public School beat the bigger heavier "Y" quintet by their cleverness at passing, dribbling and shooting. The scores were Bearcats 65, American School 25, and Public School 48, Y.M.C.A. 22. A good crowd turned out for the games.

The Shanghai American School were quite overwhelmed by the hefty Bearcats and could do but little when they got their hands on the ball. The bigger men were all over them, blocking them at every turn. Irle one of the lightest bearcats starred for the winning five. His shooting was the feature of the game. Parker and Gray also added much to the scoring of the Bearcats, For the school the two Squires boys were most active and successful. The play was clean and fouls few.

The second game saw the lighter team winning at every stage of the game on its clever dribbling, passing, catching and shooting. The school boys outclassed their taller, and heavier opponents in every department. The "Y" team particularly Bartlett and Van Hook played excellent basketball, but they were not able to get through the smart defensive tactics of the school boys. Johannson scored some particularly noticeable shots at the basket and Levis, though not quite so sensational in style was extremely effective at point getting.

Tonight the play shifts to the Rowing Club floor, with Anderson, Meyer and Co., opposing the Strokeside of the Rowing Club at 6 o'clock, and the Shanghai College meeting the Bowside Rowing Club five at 8:30.

Yesterday's scores follow:

S. PUBLIC SCHOOL BEAT XAVIERS IN SOCCER TOURNEY

Seniors And Midgets Win But Juniors Are Outclassed On Forward Line

In a one-day football tournament played Wednesday afternoon between Seniors, Juniors and Midgets of the Shanghai Public School and St. Francis Xavier's College on the latters' field, the School walked off with two matches out of three. The Seniors and the Midgets of the School were returned winners 4-2, and 2-1, while the Juniors lost to the home team 0-3.

The first match between the Senior teams was a fast and keenly played game. During the first twenty minutes the ball went from end to end of the field with no score resulting, until Johannson of the Public School shot the ball into the net after a brilliant run by Cumine on the wing. Xavier equalised shortly afterwards when Eymard got the ball into the net out of a sharp scrimmage in front of goal.

In the second half Barnes for Xavier ran the ball from the center line and scored while the Public school custodian was out in front trying to check him. The School settled down then to good football, with Johannson, Cumine and Madar, forwards often becoming dangerous and Siemssen and Brown at halfback giving full support. After some pretty combination work Johannson scored two quick goals, and was instrumental in obtaining the fourth, which Jesu put in after a pretty pass, leaving the final score at 4-2. The game was clean throughout, no fouls being awarded.

In the Juniors' game the Xavier XI proved too strong for the School, and with their faster forwards and good support from halves they won out by a score of 3-0.

The Midgets match was a fine struggle with the S. P. S. team doing the bulk of the attacking. After 15 minutes Koek shot for the School and in the resulting scored. In the second half secored. In the second half Xavier's Midgets began a vigorous attack and soon equalised the score. Wood scored the second goal for the S. P. S. five minutes before the end.

The score was 2-1.

AM'N FOOTBALL PLAYERS DRILL TOMORROW 3 P.M.

American football practice in preparation for the game Sunday afternon with the eleven off the U. S. S. Tracy, has been changed for tomorrow to the afternoon, at 3 p.m., on the north end of the Polo grounds. The practice will be the last before the Navy match, and it is guaranteed to be a stiff one.

Herby Gallop is issuing a call for all of the candidates for both the light and the heavy squads to report for the workout, since learning that the Tracy team will average up in weight much lighter than at first expected. It is now probable that many of the lighter men will be given an opportunity to work against the Navy Sunday.

It is especially desired that Maloney, Wilhoit, Dunn, Hirsch, Bud Hewitt, Hick Hewitt, Burgess, Sennett, Mahoney Whiteman, Whitcomb, Smith, Neal, Neprud, Marsden and Stovall be on hand, with any other players who wish to try out for the Shanghai elevens. Rodgers, who was depended on for half back has turned in sick and will not be able to play Sunday. With Wilhoit another good backfield man just recovering from an operation on his foot, it is more than likely that Hick Hewitt, who starred in the Thanksgiving day game against the American School will again be seen at half back with Smith and Maloney completing the trio.

A few new football uniforms are now available for players, and these will be distributed or assigned at tomorrow practice.

Center Will Play Harvard Next Year

Cambridge, Mass. Nov. 24.—Center College, the little Kentucky backwoods school that walloped Harvard 6 to 0 this fall, making the standing in the games with Harvard one each, will be invited to come east again next year.

Harvard graduate authorities announced today that negotiations were under way to have the two teams clash again on the Harvard field and settle the question of supremacy.

Charlie Barff Is Presented With Silver Trophy Cup

Mr. C. S. Barff, who won the Stock Exchange Billiards Handicap, was presented Wednesday with a silver cup at the Shanghai Stock Exchange by Mr. G. H. Potts. Mr. Potts remarked that the handicap proved a most enjoyable event and expressed the hope that similar handicaps would be held in the future.

Mr. Barff responded in suitable terms, regretting that the final match did not come off owing to his opponent scratching.

Prizes Distributed For S.V.C. Annual Rifle Meets

Every Unit represented In Uniform; 62 Men Receive Trophies

Prizes were distributed at the Town Hall last night to successful contestants in the Annual Rifle Meets of the various units of the Shanghai Volunteer Corps which have but recently been concluded. Col. R. Marr Johnson, C. M. G., D. S. O., distributed the Corps trophies while Mrs. A. Brooke-Smith gave out the individual prizes.

A musical program preceded the distribution of awards. Two hundred and sixteen competitors were represented. Sixty-two successful riflemen received prizes, some more than one. The hall was well filled with uniformed representations of the various units and friends of the corps. The decorations used at the Caledonian Ball were kept over for the occasion.

The Program included song selections by Mrs. Isherwood, Mr. H. E. Muriel, and Q. M. S. G. B. Stormes, S. V. C., musical selections by the Portuguese Co., S. V. C. String Band, and an exhibition of fencing by the Chinese Co., S. V. C.

Preceding the distribution of prizes Col. Johnson and Capt. A. M. Diniz, the latter of the Portuguese Co., spoke in congratulation for the successful competitors, and words of hope for the future of the corps.

The distribution followed.

Harriers To Have Two Training Runs Tomorrow

BULGARIA PIQUED TO START A WAR

Conflict In Allied Diplomacy Is Seen As Encouraging An Attack On Greece

CABINET PACIFISM CHECK

Frank Vanderlip, In Sofia, Say War Is Probable Unless Greece Is Put Back

BY ELMER DAVIS

Sofia, Oct. 14.—Frank Vanderlip, passing through Sofia yesterday, told the local journalists that another Balkan war was probable unless Greece is put back where she belongs, meaning out of Anatolia, Thrace and Saloniki.

This falls in with local sentiment as observed by The New York Times correspondent, who has found everywhere the conviction that Serbia is certain to seize Saloniki sooner or later, in which case Bulgaria will have a chance at Thrace.

There is no support of this view in Serbian circles, but there is some evidence that the Greeks fear something of the sort. The recent Serbian protest against Greek obstruction of Serbian trade in Saloniki resulted in the immediate dispatch of three Greek Ministers and desperate efforts to clear the matter up.

The Bulgars all insist that their nation is tired of war. The correspondent is inclined to suspect that this means tired of losing wars, but there is good reason to believe it is at least partly true. Bulgaria's recent wars have been disastrous, so the nation is inclined to try other methods of getting on with her neighbors.

Whether this feeling is strong enough to resist sudden temptation is questionable, but the general belief of foreigners here is that seemingly the Stambolisky Government is sincerely anti-militarist and, if long enough in control, will still further cool off the nation. The under-rated influence of young King Boris, who is highly thought of everywhere, is also pacific and in striking contrast with his father.

Nevertheless, it seems from what the correspondent hears here, that Bulgaria would be glad to jump on the Greek if she thought she had a chance of winning, and it is conceivable that if Greek reverses in Asia Minor lead to other troubles, the situation might present a strong temptation to Bulgaria.

The correspondent is inclined to surmise that there is no immediate danger, owing to the close surveillance of the Allies. There is considerable difficulty over the question of the future of the Bulgarian Army and of the present disarmament. The general belief is that considerable ammunition has been hidden, though probably not enough for a serious war.

Apparently the opinion of intelligent Bulgars is that it is useless to attack Greece without the support of her neighbors or of the Allies. The correspondent is inclined to believe that the Bulgarian hope of Jugoslav co-operation is illusory in view of the resentment caused by the last two wars.

Fortunately, however, Bulgarian war weariness is reinforced by Stambolisky's pacifism, and still more by the Allied control which has blocked measures resembling the re-establishment of conception. If given time there may be a peaceful issue, but the correspondent's opinion, after talking with many representative Bulgars and foreigners, is that a conflict in allied diplomacy in the Balkans such as is now existing concerning Anatolia, might easily encourage Bulgaria to try her luck, not against Jugoslavia, but against Greece. Bulgaria is more pacific than for years past, but for some time she cannot be trusted without watching.

HURON WINS OVER SO. CHINA PATROL IN HONGKONG 18-4

Flagship's Last Game In China Won By Heavy Hitting And Patrol's Errors

(China Press Correspondence)

Hongkong, Nov. 7.—The U.S.S. Huron today won her last game in China defeating the South China Patrol including U.S.S. Pampanga U.S.S. Rizal and U.S.S. Long 18 to 4. Draper pitched fine ball for the first three innings allowing no hits or runs but Whitehurst finished it allowing 9 hits and 4 runs. The men from the South China Patrol made many errors and were no match for the flagship although they substituted many men during the game. Their pitchers were not effective and were hit freely. Brenner the new short stop is putting up a wonderful game and is handy with the stick. Scymanski and Prehm also played good ball. Prehm has finally got the knack of hitting, getting two hits today. Scymanski also got two. Karon, Kinney and Novoty for the South China also got two apiece. Jones formerley of the 35th Div. was out today but being just out of the hospital did not go in the line up.

Bird Flies 2,000 Miles To Say Heller Is Lost

New York, Sept. 25.—Professor Edmund Heller, naturalist and co-author with the late Theodore Roosevelt of Life Histories of African Game Animals, is lost on the southeast slope of Hoodoo Mountain, in the Yellowstone National Park, according to a message attached to the leg of a carrier pigeon found last night perched on the railing of an apartment building in Fifty-eighth Street, near Broadway, and registering exhaustion, by Patrolman Wesley Wilson, of the West Forty-seventh Street police station. When ordered to move on by Wilson, the pigeon refused.

Wilson took the bird, which had attracted him by gentle cooing, to the station, charged with vagrancy. Lieutenant Callahan, in charge of the night detail, removed a perfectly clean tissue paper message from a shiny container attached to the bird's leg. The message read:

"Notify Dan Singer, Belleclaire Hotel, Broadway at Seventy-seventh Street, I am lost Hoodoo Mountain, Yellowstone. Send help, provisions and pack horses.—Heller."

The note was dated August 13. Mr. Heller's pigeon, if it flew from Hoodoo Hountain to Fifty-eighth Street, Manhattan, did 2,000 miles in four days.

After reading the message Mr. Singer registered excitement and rushed to a telegraph office where he say she wired Ned Frost, a well known guide of Cody, Wyo. His message read:

"Ned Frost.

"Wapiti Ranch, Wyoming.

"Start at once, spare no expense. Fastest ponies and provisions. Heller lost Hoodoo Mountain, Southeast.

"SINGER."

"Mr. Heller left here ten days ago to photograph big game in the Yellowstone," said Mr. Singer. "He took twelve ponies and packs out of Cody. I don't know what can have happened to him, but I believe he was caught in a rockslide on one of the slopes of the Hoodoo. I know the place well. It is very treacherous. Professor Heller took the same big camera with him that did duty when he was in Africa with Roosevelt. He has kept his carrier pigeons on the roof of the Belleclaire for many months. The birds are a hobby with him. He always carries several when in the wilds."

Lieutenant Callahan fed the pigeon two teaspoonsful of a bright amber liquid said to have been confiscated earlier in the evening. It revived immediately. It was preening its feathers when Mr. Singer arrived and addressed it affectionately as "Andy." The bird looked at him scornfully and then gazed on the empty spoon in Callahan's hand with yearning eyes.

Mr. Singer said Andy was one of five carrier pigeons which had accompanied Mr. Roosevelt and Professor Heller in their African expedition thirteen years ago. Andy displayed no evidence of senility, due perhaps to what the lieutenant had fed it from the spoon.

Professor Heller is a member of the Campfire Club of America, the Explorers' Club and the New York Athletic Club. Mrs. Heller is said to be visiting friends in Utah. A telegram was sent her last night apprising her of Andy's message.

The Hotel Belleclaire has long been favored by nature lovers, big game hunters and trainers of wild animals. A year ago an adventurous young man signing himself T. R. Zann registered at the hostelry, accompanied by a lion, which later assisted in making motion picture history with "Tarzan of the Apes."

Lavalliere, Paris Stage Idol, Finds Happiness In Cloister

Paris, Oct. 6.—Eve Lavalliere was a name that brought a pleasureful and knowing expression to any face in Paris less than four years ago.

By far the leading luminary of the French light comedy stage, acknowledged as the most popular of all the beautiful women of the Parisian theaters, whose public career is but half the life story, Eve Lavalliere dropped from sight in utter eclipse during the big war.

Paris — the internationalised French capital of the war—that had flocked to the Varietes to see the beautiful and typically French artist, who, despite her "forties," was the envy of all rivals, suddenly heard the story that she had left the stage forever and intended to enter a convent. Paris theorised on the cause and refused to believe it.

Eventually a flood of stories of clever press agent work, blighted love affairs, and even those of a more sordid source, began to discount what had appeared to be a temporary absence of Lavalliere from her court behind the footlights. Paris saw Lavalliere no more and forgot her.

The other day a Parisian writer on vacation was passing a small cottage in the tiny village of Thuillieres, in the department of the Vosges, in eastern France. An image of Christ occupied a niche over the cottage door. Green ivy submerged the white chalk wall to one side. The stone structure of the dwelling was bathed in a pious white, but the cottage itself was only conspicuous to this materialistic Parisian because a white-faced woman, whose perfect form was clothed in garments of the deepest black—accentuating thin artistic hands as well as a pretty face—emerged from the nearby church and walked with a young woman companion toward the cottage. The intruder withdrew slightly to watch. The two women entered the cottage and the Parisian asked a villager who the woman was. It was Eve Lavalliere.

The Parisian returned to the cottage door and knocked. The young girl who had accompanied the once famous actress of France from the church across the way opened it. The conversation which followed between the Parisian and the country companion of Lavalliere was an eloquent recital of half the story of a woman who had entered a life in which there could be no past.

The old-time friends and admirers of Lavalliere will never see her again. This much they now gather from the new Lavalliere.

"Yes, she is here," said the girl in the doorway, but you cannot see her. Do not insist. It is a principle, an absolute rule. Mlle. Lavalliere will never receive another person from Paris; not even her most intimate friends. This is not an ordinary house; it is a cloister. She who suffers constantly has not the health or strength to enter a regular convent. She has retired from the world. Her only intimates are two or three persons in the village; the poor that she aids and those who work for her. She never leaves here except to make short pilgrimages. We were recently at Lourdes (a small town near by), but except for walks in Saint-Antoine wood or in the garden here, she seldom leaves this house."

The once famous comedy actress has never talked of the theater in her isolated retreat, the girl disclosed.

"Never," said the girl, "between the world and her everything is finished—everything. She still sings, but for the 'bon Dieu' alone at the church. Her voice has become marvelous. She reaches notes that she could never have hoped to reach before. At the mass the entire choir supports her. "Mlle. Lavalliere has become purified," said the devout little companion, "and she now occupies herself with nothing more than the 'bon Dieu.' Do not imagine that she is always sad," warned the girl. "On the contrary she is gay, but with that charming gayety of one who is religious. She has often told me, 'Now I am happy, and never have I been more happy.'"

Holder Top Shaving Stick

The necessity of Williams' Shaving stick is paramount in Shaving. Its rich, lasting lather imparts a velvety coolness to the face which makes shaving a pleasure.

An added convenience is the Holder Top feature. The holder forms the top of the box when the stick is not in use and prevents the soap from touching fingers when being used. The Holder can be reloaded at less cost than the complete stick.

HUMAN HAIR

The eternal feminine demand for adornment is the basis of this remarkable industry.

Shanghai, Canton and Chungking are the great human hair centers of China, which annually export 3,000,000 lbs. of hair.

The manufacture of hairnets is of recent origin and is confined chiefly to Shantung. Nets to the value of G. $4,000,000 left there via Chefoo last year.

80 per cent. of China's hairnets go to America where the consumption is steadily increasing.

Wu Pei-fu Using Strong Arm Tactics On Railway

BY PETER S. JOWE
(China Press Correspondence)

Hankow, November 26.—In an effort to secure, it is alleged, the revenues and profits of the Peking-Hankow Railway administration of Hankow, and the Government Telegraph Administration of Hankow, General Wu Pei-fu is trying hard to kick out of office the present managers of the railway and telegraphs at Hankow. Before his departure from Hankow for Loyang to mourn the death of his wife, General Wu Pei-fu issued orders for dismissal of the railway and telegraph heads on charges of embezzlement of government funds, meanwhile appointing successors to the vacated posts.

But, both the railway administrator, Mr. C. T. Hsia, and the telegraph director, Mr. Ho Bing-chang, defied the orders of General Wu Pei-fu, contending that the had received their appointments directly from the Ministry of Communications and therefore had nothing to do with the military cheiftains of the provinces. Whatever charges might be brought up against them, they further conteneded, either by Wu Pei-fu or any other interested person, should be dealt with by the Ministry of Communications, inasmuch as they are both employes of that Ministry.

The telegraph director was later compelled to resign, leaving his post to Mr. Yi Kwei-sang who was appointed by the High Inspectorate-General, Upon retirement which was forced by military coercion, Mr. Ho Bing-chang went to Peking, where he was promised other appointment. But one of his subordinates, who was in charge of the materials department of the telegraph administration, defied General Wu Pei-fu's authority to the last moment. He refused to hand over charge to the new man appointed by Wu Pei-fu's order, until he was transferred by a warrant issued for his arrest.

The ousting of the Kinhan railway chief was ordered by General Wu Pei-fu the night before his departure from Hankow, when under the charge of misappropriation of government funds, General Wu ordered Mr. C. T. Hsia to quit office, for which Mr. Fung Yun, formerly superintendent of the Road Construction Work in Hankow, was simultaneously appointed. Mr. Fung Yun approached Mr. Hsia with the orders of General Wu Pei-fu, who had not been previously notified by General Wu.

The charge of embezzlement was based on a petition of the Collector of Receipts of the southern section of the Peking-Hankow line established by General Wu Pei-fu who wants the daily receipts for defraying his heavy military expenses. The collectorate chief acuses Mr. Hsia of having unjudiciously laid an enormous sinking fund in his engineering projects in Hankow.

He also acuses Hsia of being an Anfu colleague and a returned student from Japan.

Mr. Hsia as a matter of fact is an American returned engineer, having been to America twice on railway business. In a special interview with your representative, Mr. Hsia who is the head of the Kinhan Land office, declared that the attempt to dismiss him from the Hankow job means the first step by General Wu Pei-fu to secure control of the whole southern section of the Kinhan railway and get the railway building in the French Concession in Hankow, so that he will have a free hand in appropriating all the income of this railway.

Thus far however, the Communications Ministry at Peking has been defying the authority of the High Inspecting Commissioner of Hupeh and Hunan. on the ground that military and communications authorities have separate functions and powers in their respective administration. The Ministry, according to reliable information received in Hankow, has urged General Wu Pei-fu to revoke his Mandate issued in Hankow in the capacity of Inspecting Commissioner, assuring him that an official thorough investigation of the charge will be made by the Ministry before passing any settlement of the case.

The Director of Railways of the Ministry of Communications has also wired Mr. C. T. Hsia, ordering him to remain in office until after the investigation is made. He was again enjoined not to hand over charge to anybody appointed by any authority whatsoever in any circumstances.

The engineering scheme of the Kinhan Hankow office embodies an ambitious plan to extend the city area of Hankow over the stretch of suburban land beyond Hankow city along the Kinhan railway embankment and track. The schemes have been approved by the Ministry of Communications as technically sound and profitable, as the filling up of the land, which is mostly the property of the railways, will make an area just as large as the present city available for the extension of Hankow as the industrial and commercial metropolis of Interior China.

A very efficient plan has been provided whereby after five years about 4,000 mow of city land will be available for the growing city of Hankow. The filling of the present low land will be carried out by machine dredgers and other scientific equipment which cost about $1,250,000. In preparing the scheme, expert advice of leading engineers in China has been secured, and Mr. Muller of the Hwai Ho Conservancy Board at Tientsin visited Hankow last year to survey the land in question.

Disappointed and disheartened by this attempt of General Wu Pei-fu to frustrate railway and engineering progress by military coercion Mr. C. T. Hsia has tendered his resignation to the Ministry of Communications at Peking, urging the Ministry to investigate the charges thoroughly, and mete out punishment to those who engineered the charges against him, if such is found to be the case. Mr. Hsia stated that he regretted to see General Wu Pei-fu, who has a national reputation as the champion of China's national cause, thus killing engineering progress in China in such a manner.

The Chinese authorities issued last night a warrant for forcing Mr. Hsia out of office, but as the Kinhan railway office building is situated in the French Concession, the warrant had to be countersigned by the French Consul-General. When the latter was requested to do so, he refused to attach his signature on the ground that the railway head has not yet been found guilty nor dismissed by the Ministry of Communications.

Gruesome Crime Bared By Fall Of Butcher's Wall

(China Press Correspondence)

Nanchang, Nov. 24.—Thanks to a falling wall and the suspicions of a customs inspector "Three-year" Wan and two of his friends instead of a journey into the wide, wide world, contemplate the foot of the little red hill in the public square, a firing squad and the great beyond.

Wan is a butcher but the gambling mania got his shop. To tide him over, an old friend with unsuspected wealth, offered to loan him a hundred dollars. Wan accepted and became friendlier than ever. Soon the secret of the unknown wealth came out.

Wei Hsien-chen was of the family of Chang Hsun. Chang Hsun's name is still greatly respected in these parts. Wei felt safe under its aura to take a venture or two in opium. Finally opium became his only stock in trade. Apparently his shop was closed, the boards were always up, but within Wei prospered.

Wan felt that this inequality among friends was a bad thing, so with three other friends of Wei they paid him a call. His two wives had gone into the city to spend the night with relatives. He was alone except for a bed-ridden amah. The friends proposed a division of the opium proceeds. Wei objected, was firmly tied and with a butchers knife Wan cut his throat.

The amah was forced to tell tne hiding place of the money under threat of death. She told and was killed anyway. The party carried their loot away, returned to a feast of what they found left in the kitchen, set fire to the house and withdrew.

The debris of a falling wall saved Wei's body from burning and when it was uncovered the police began a search for a dark-haired man with a butcher knife. About the same time Wan and his friends started to cross the river for the railway station. The native customs held them up, decided the contents of their boxes were hardly in keeping with their attire and called the police. One of them got away, but three are now awaiting the early morning and the firing squad.

This was the worst of five robberies in the city last night. The high price of rice, and nonpayment of police and soldiers are cited as causes of the crime wave the city and province are suffering now.

BANK CRISIS IS NOW HELD OVER

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Nov 28.—The financial situation in Peking has not materially altered but the position of the Banks of China and Communications continues to improve day by day. Although General Chang Tso-lin's $3,000,000 have not reached these two banks, the consignment of silver from Mukden has eased the shortage of silver currency at the capital.

The position will be further strengthened during December by the release of nearly $10,000,000 from the Maritime Customs in payment of loan redemption and loan coupons. These payments will begin on December 1 and on the last day of the month. It is generally conceded that the two banks have now weathered the storm.

In an interview granted to a representative of Reuter's Agency this morning an official of the Chinese Bankers' Association said that the Bank of China both at Peking and at Tientsin on December 1 would resume full payment in silver of all notes presented.

The promise of the Shanghai Bankers Association to remit silver to Peking is being carried out. Three parcels of specie, each of $500,000, have already reached Peking and the fourth and final is due to arrive tomorrow, November 29. One million dollars have also been received from Tientsin. Thus the Bank of China has been placed on its feet again.

The position of the Bank of Communications is not so good but it also is well on the way to complete recovery and its notes are being accepted for remittance to other ports, equally with those of the Bank of China, by the banks comprising the Bankers' Association but in order to prevent flooding business is restricted today to $10,000 by each bank so that notes to the value of $190,000 will be accepted today by the other Chinese banks. The Banks of China and Communications will remit similar amounts on presentation of their notes.

With regard to General Chang Tso-lin's fund in Peking the official said that no arrangement had been reached with General Chang and it appeared likely that it would remain in the hands of the Fengtien Bank. The position of the Kalgan, Hankow, Tsinanfu and Tientsin branches of the Banks of China and Communications had been fully restored.

Canton Acclaims Freedom Of Korea

(Eastern News Agency)

Canton, Nov. 28.—Chang Ching-shun, M. P. of the Southern Government, after obtaining approval from ten members of Parliament, has introduced to the extraordinary Parliament a bill for the independence of Chosen. The gist of the bill is:

"In defiance of the Bakan Treaty, Article 1 in which provides that Japan and China will recognise Chosen as a complete independent country, China has devised no counter-measures as regards this matter when eleven years have already elapsed since the annexation of Chosen by Japan, a thing which brings shame upon the Chinese people.

"The questions respecting Manchuria, Mongolia, and Shantung as well as the twenty-one demands are all those that have come of Japan's intention to annex China in the same manner as she did towards Chosen. The Sino-Korean Society has now been organised and the Washington Conference held and the time has come when the Powers have come to show sympathy towards Chosen.

"At such an opportune time as this, that China, who has the relation of interdependence with Chosen, should remain silent, without doing anything for the latter, should be considered as a violation of friendship. We should, therefore, take advantage of this opportunity and proclaim the independence of Chosen by a resolution of the extraordinary Parliament and at the same time despatch a circular telegram to that effect to the Washington Conference as well as all over China."

TRADE STILL HALTS

(Reuter's Service)

Washington, Nov. 30.—The Federal Reserve Board's monthly report states that the improvement in trade in November was not so marked as in September and October. The iron and steel trade recovery has halted and the silk industry shows surprising unevenness.

ROBBERS SENTENCED

Wong Yoong-sai and Tsung Lau-ng, members of a band of armed robbers which looted an exchange shop on Avenue Edward VII last February and took about $3,000, were convicted yesterday in the Mixed Court before Magistrate Yui and American Assessor Tenney and were each sentenced to serve 15 years imprisonment. Others of the gang are being sought.

Policeman Wounded By Armed Robbers

In a clash with a gang of ten armed robbers caught red handed in an attempt to rob a Chinese shop in Hung Chun north of Yingziengkong, a Chinese village near Yangtszepoo, one of a trio of Chinese policemen was seriously and perhaps fatally wounded. The victim is at St. Luke's hospital. The three police came upon the attempted robbery unexpectedly as they were walking down the road and when the bandits in beating retreat opened fire one of them fell with a dangerous wound in the abdomen. All of the bandits escaped.

Small Pox Situation Thought Less Serious

Though new cases of small pox continue to develop among both the foreign and Chinese population, in the opinion of the health authorities of the Settlement the worst phases of the present epidemic have been experienced and, according to Dr. C. N. Davis, Health Officer, the situation now is fairly well in hand.

Among the foreign population an average of about two cases a day have been reported and admitted to the Isolation hospital with a total of thirteen cases reported last week. The number of deaths will be tabulated at the end of the month. Nine Chinese succumbed to the disease in the past week, according to the current issue of the Municipal Gazette.

RUBBER CO. PLAN IS NOW APPROVED

(Reuter's Service)

London, Nov. 29.—In view of the termination on Dec. 31 of the scheme for the voluntary restriction of rubbers outputs, the Council of the Rubber Growers Association is asking all rubber producers who assented to the scheme to continue the restriction by undertaking not to produce more rubber in the first six months of 1922 than was produced in the corresponding period of 1921, or as an alternative not more than 75 percent of their output in the corresponding period of 1920.

The producers who remained outside the scheme are urged to undertake the restriction of their output by 25 percent of the amount produced in the corresponding period of 1921 or 1920. Assent to renewal of the scheme ceases to be binding unless the assentors are notified prior to Dec. 31 that members of the Association controlling not less than seventy percent of the producing area, will be represented by members of the Association.

No Change Comes In Macao Clash

(Eastern News Agency)

Canton, Nov. 29.—The Portuguese Minister to Peking came here again from Macao. He, along with Dr. Wu Ting-fang, was invited to a dinner by the British Consul General here.

According to a report emanating from a reliable source, the Portuguese Minister still persists that a commission of inquiry should be despatched by either side and that upon a full investigation being made into the fact, formal negotiations be opened.

The Canton Government appears to maintain a firm stand on the following proposals: (1) The Portuguese, who first commenced firing, shall apologise to the Southern Government. (2) Those Portuguese, who are responsible for the firing, shall be punished. (3) Portuguese vessels shall be prohibited from entering the Chinese waters near the Yinkang Wanchai. (4) Gambling shall be prohibited in Macao.

U. S. Assn. Head Is Expelled By Mexico

(Special To The China Press)

Laredo, Tex., Nov. 30.—William F. Buckley, president of the American Association of Mexico, today crossed the border at Laredo after having been expelled from Mexico. Mr. Buckley was arrested last week, and now, although his expulsion was not official, cannot return to Mexico without authorisation from that nation.

President Buckley was expelled, authorities state, because of his activities against the present Mexican administration.

Washington, Nov. 30.—The Federal reserve board will probably appoint an unofficial advisor to participate in the projected conference of Allied bankers to prevent indemnity payments from disrupting exchange.

WU PEI-FU GOES BACK TO HANKOW

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Nov. 28.—It is reported that General Wu Pei-fu left Paotingfu for Hankow on the 26th instant. His main object in attending the Paotingfu conference seems to have been to prevent the other northern leaders from taking any direct action against the South, which would have thrown General Chen Chiung-min into active co-operation with Dr. Sun.

General Wu also arranged for the troops of General Chiang Kwei-ti, who are at present unemployed, to proceed to Loyang and strengthen General Wu's old headquarters which have been depleted by the removal of his men to the Yangtze. After being reorganised into two mixed brigades it is said that General Chiang's men will be posted along the Peking-Hankow Railway and the Lunghai line.

In Honan General Chiang's troops will be near old comrades as the forces of General Chow Ti (Tuchun of Honan) were formerly Yichun under the command of General Chiang Kwei-ti and were sent to Honan under General Chow to wipe out the White Wolves. General Chow's success in that enterprise led to his appointment by President Yuan as Tuchun of Honan.

Two Gov'ts Clash Over Oil Lands

(Reuter's Service)

London, Nov. 30.—It appears that most of the concessions in the Northern Provinces of Persia now granted to the Standard Oil Company were formerly held by the Anglo-Persian Company, but these rights were repudiated by the new Persian Government. The two companies are now investigating the position and are carrying on negotiations in a most friendly spirit, and a reasonable compromise is expected.

The question is complicated however by the fact that the Russian Soviet Government is also claiming part of the concessions. The suggestion of prospective war between American and British interests in scouted as most mischievous and absurd.

Legion Tells U. S. To O.K. Porto Rico

(Special To The China Press)

San Juan, Porto Rico, Nov. 30.—The American Legion of Porto Rico today gave out a statement endorsing the administrational policy of the island. It also stated that Congress should sustain, demonstrate and declare Porto Rico an organised territory of the United States forever.

MARKS NOW 930

(Reuter's Service)
London, Nov. 30.—German marks rapidly recovered today to 930 and finished at 965 as compared with 1100 yesterday, the market taking the view that the visit of Dr. Rathenau will lead to the re-organisation of Germany's financial position. There was an improving effect on other foreign currencies though towards the end selling was in evidence. French francs recovered to 56.30 and closed at 57 as compared with 57.75 yesterday, this checking the retrograde movement of the past week.

Exchange Fluctuations

Asia Banking Corporation

December 1, 1921

Spot and forward bar silver were each down 1-8d. in London yesterday. The New York price advanced to 67½ cents, and the London-New York cross rate to 400½. The only changes in the official quotations here today were a rise in the Rupee rate to 289¾ and a drop in the Franc rate to 1090.

While rates at which business was done varied throughout the day, the market on the whole was steady to firm, particularly in the morning. Business in the forenoon in Sterling was done at 3s. 10d. for cash, 3s. 9⅝d. for December and 3s. 8⅜d. for January.

Gold Dollars were done at 76¾ for cash, 76 for December, and 75 for January.

In the afternoon the market was a shade easier, and there were buyers at these quotations, but there were good sellers at slightly below these rates. The market closed steady. The drop in silver in London yesterday is attributed to heavy selling by the Continent, while America bought. The market is stated to have closed steady. New York report their market as being very firm, with good buyers at the official quotation which is well above the London parity.

Freight Market

Messrs. Wheelock and Company write as follows in their fortnightly freight market report of yesterday.

The situation in our Outward Freight markets is as follows:—

To United Kingdom and Continent:—The position remains unchanged and there seems little hope of any improvement taking place for some months;—Reports from Tientsin and Hankow tend to confirm this view.

To United States Overland and via Canals:—No change to report. Rates to New York direct continue at their low level with the result that what little cargo there is moving is routed to New York via canals rather than via Pacific.

Coastwise:—The Port of Newchwang is expected to close at any moment and fixtures made during the past fortnight are now completing their voyages;—there is little or no enquiry elsewhere for tonnage;—the depression in the Yangtsze Valley continues and shows no signs of any improvement in the near future;—the regular coastal services are being well maintained.

Coal Market

Messrs. Wheelock and Company write as follows in their fortnightly coal market report of yesterday.

Japan Coal:—During the past fortnight some of the principal Contracts for 1922 requirements have been settled at rates which are easier than those obtaining a year ago and this can be accounted for by the cheaper freight rates existing at present and the cheaper prices for coal now ruling in Japan as compared with prices at this time last year, at the close, however, the coal market in Japan is reported to have strengthened somewhat.

Fushun Coal:—No change.

Fuchung Anthracite: — No change.

Kaiping Coal:—A considerable demand has arisen during the last two weeks, and the available stock is scarcely sufficient for all purposes. Owing probably to the recent financial stringency, deliveries were somewhat restricted, but now that matters are again normal and manufactured goods are on the increase, requirements exceed the available supply.

Say Quadruple Alliance Will Be The Outcome

to accept the proposal of sixty per cent, after making bitter protests.

The army issue is being brought to a head despite obstacles raised by the publicity given by the American delegation to their announcement that if a fair agreement is not reached they will declare publicly who is responsible. No smoothing over nor concealment will be permitted, they say.

This is taken as an indication that America will not permit friction between any two powers, meaning England and France, stand in the way of international accomplishments at the conference.

Harding's pronouncement for an association of nations, which would include an invitation to Germany, is regarded as a reply to France's unyielding spirit of refusal to consider collective action. If France persists, it may find itself in the situation of complete isolation which Briand dreads.

Harding's pronouncement has drawn the fire of the Senate irreconcilables. Senator Borah in an interview today, said that he opposed the association of nations as much as the league, because it is worse than the league since the latter was protected by restrictions in the covenant and is in addition less stable. He holds that it is impossible for America to join any association until the Versailles treaty is revised.

Persistent efforts are being made to draw the attention of the conference to European questions, the prevailing plea being that a complete smash in central Europe is unavoidable before spring and that the Powers sooner or later must act with America participating.

(Reuter's Service)

The resolution unanimously adopted by the Far Eastern Committee relative to the extra-territorial question provides that the powers concerned shall establish a Commission, to which each will appoint a member, to enquire into the present practice of extra-territorial jurisdiction in China, into the laws, judicial system and methods of judicial administration with a view to reporting findings of fact and recommendations regarding means to improve the existing conditions of the administration of justice in China and to assist the efforts of the Chinese Government to effect such legislation and judicial reforms as to warrant the powers in relinquishing progressively or otherwise their rights of extra-territoriality.

The commission shall be constituted within three months of the adjournment of the Conference and instructed to submit a report and recommendations within a year after the first meeting of the Commission. Each of the Powers shall be deemed free to accept or reject all or any portion of the recommendations but in no case shall any of the Powers make their acceptance directly or indirectly dependent on China's granting any special concession, favor, benefit or immunity, whether political or economic.

MAY AGREE TO IT

An additional resolution provides that the non-signatory Powers, having extraterritorial rights in China, may accede to the resolution with regard to extra-territoriality within three months after the adjournment of the Conference.

A further additional resolution expresses China's satisfaction with the sympathy of the Powers with regard to the abolition of extra-territoriality and declares that it is China's intention to appoint a Chinese member to the Extra-territoriality Commission, it being understood that China is free to accept or reject any or all of the recommendations of the Commission. China is prepared to co-operate in the work of the Commission and in every way to facilitate the successful accomplishment of its tasks.

The Committee then discussed the question of foreign troops and police in China and adjourned until November 30.

CHINA'S ASKS MUCH

Washington, Nov. 30.—Speaking before the Far Eastern Committee previous to the discussion on the question of foreign troops and police in China, Mr. Alfred Sze said that China was asking not merely that existing treaty or conventional limitations upon the autonomous unembarrassed exercise or her territorial and administrative powers should be removed as rapidly and completely as circumstances justified but that the conditions constituting violation of her rights as an independent State should be corrected.

He asked the Conference to approve the proposition, to which, he contended, it was committed by the principles adopted on November 21, namely, that each Power attending the Conference declared that "without the consent of the Government of China expressly and specifically given in each case, it shall not station troops or railway guards or maintain police boxes or erect or operate electrical communication installations upon the soil of China and, if there now exists upon the soil of China such troops, railway guards, police boxes or electrical installations without China's express consent, they shall be immediately withdrawn."

SHOWS THE RAVAGE

The Chinese delegation submitted detailed data, supporting Mr. Sze's data, supporting that it had been submitted simply in order to show the extent to which China's territorial and administrative integrity is now being violated and not as implying that the Chinese Government will be contented with the abatement of those specific violations of her sovereign rights."

The data include a tentative list of foreign troops, police, and railway guards in China, showing that Japan maintained a garrison as follows: Four battalions and a force of gendarmerie in Shantung, a battalion and special detachments at Hankow and a division of troops and over twenty-seven police agencies in Manchuria.

Without the consent of China the Japanese had established eleven wireless stations, the French four, the British two and the United States five, while Japan without the sanction of the Chinese Government maintained telegraphs at Peking and Tientsin, fourteen stations on the Shantung Railway and 34 on the South Manchuria Railway. There were also Russian telegraphs along the Chinese Eastern Railway. The number of Japanese police in South Manchuria was estimated at 1,499 and an additional 1,000 along the two railways, while more police-stations were being established at Mukden and elsewhere.

SOUTH STANDS STRONG

(Eastern News Agency)

Canton, Nov. 30.—At yesterday's Cabinet Council, Dr. Wu Ting-fang, Minister for Foreign Affairs, made a statement in effect that in spite of proceedings of the Washington Conference making smooth progress, as the Southern Government has not despatched its delegates to the Conference, there is necessity for the Canton Government to place its views before the Conference, so that the delegations of the Powers may not be cheated by the representatives of the Peking Government.

Dr. Wu also tendered to the council in question a statement of his views written in English, which was unanimously passed and was despatched by telegraph to the United States Government.

JAPAN IS WILLING

(Eastern News Agency)

Tokio, Nov. 30.—With regard to the proposal submitted by the Chinese delegates to the Washington Conference for the withdrawal of foreign post offices in China, the Japanese delegates have referred the matter to the Imperial Government of Japan, which, it is authoritatvely reported, has decided to agree to the proposal on the whole and to issue its instructions to that effect to the Japanese delegates at no distant date.

WON'T DEBATE DEBTS

(Special To The China Press)

Washington, Nov. 30.—The British delegation at the Disarmament Conference declared that the British government has no intention of bringing up at the conference the subject of international indebtedness.

POSTPONE MEETING

(Special To The China Press)

Washington, Nov. 30.—Today's fifth meeting of the Big Five Naval experts was postponed until tomorrow at the request of one of the delegations. Which delegation had requested the postponement was not specified.

FAVOR ASSOCIATION

(Special To The China Press)

London, Nov. 30.—The press is giving increasing attention to President Harding's suggestion of an association of nations.

The Morning Post says: "Any method whereby America can bring her vast influence to bear for the restoration of civilisation is most welcome. Without America it is impossible for the League of Nations to fulfill its purposes."

The Post disapproved Britain's suspension of naval building.

TO WITHDRAW TROOPS

(Special To The China Press)

Washington, Nov. 30.—It is understood that Hanrihara told the Far Eastern affairs committee that Japan is willing to withdraw troops guarding the Shantung railroads before the conclusion of negotiations between China and Japan provided China will offer an adequate policy.

HARDING AT WORK

(Special To The China Press)

Washington, Nov. 30.—It was learned that President Harding does not expect to propose an association of nations until the naval and Far Eastern questions are decided, but expects to do so before the departure of the delegations, obtaining their agreement to a plan for future conferences.

It was said that the President is now at work on the framework for such an association and is trying to avoid the impression that the association would rival the League of Nations.

COMMISSION PLAN

(Special To The China Press)

Washington, Nov. 30.—The committee on Far Eastern affairs has adopted a resolution that the governments of the eight powers shall establish a commission to inquire into the present practice of extra-territoriality in China with a view to submitting recommendations.

The commission shall be instituted within three months of the adjournment of the conference and will submit a report and recommendations within one year after its first meeting. Eact power is free to accept or reject all or only part of the recommendations of the commission.

China declared her intention to appoint a represenative who shall have the full rights of a member of the commission.

CITIZENS WIRE HUGHES

The National Citizens Diplomatic Affairs Associations met in the World's Chinese Students Federation yesterday and formulated a telegram to Secretary of State Hughes at the Washington Conference asking that the conference declare for the independence of Korea, the unconditional return of Tsingtao to China, the cancellation of Japan's Twenty-one demands and the prohibition of any of the powers loaning money to either the North or the South in the civil war in China.

Dr. Lee Tun-huai presided.

JAPAN PRESS GLAD

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tokio, Nov. 30.—The way in which the Washington Conference is progressing is extremely satisfactory says the Asahi in a leading article, which is delighted to see Japan's policy toward China being more clearly understood.

Mr. Hanihara's statement that Japan views most sympathetically China's efforts to abolish consular jurisdiction seems to have created a surprise to Americans, as if it were a new direction of policy, whereas the Japanese are equally astonished at the Americans who up to now have misunderstood Japan's true motives. The paper urges the Japanese Government to make such concessions to China as are reasonably possible, so as to remove once and for all the causes for a conflict and clash between the two countries. The discussions on naval ratio, which so far have always been two-sided, now seem to show evidence of a desire to effect a compromise of differences.

A writer in the Jiji, which is regarded as the organ of naval opinion says the ratio issue is most insignificant as compared with the possibility of reaching a Triple entente between Britain, America and Japan which would replace and carry on the aims of the Anglo-Japanese Alliance.

A similar view is advanced by Mr. Y. Ozaki who says the issue of any war does not depend on a sixty or seventy percent but on the degree of the development of national energies, compared with which the present issue is a mere nothing.

SHANTUNG NOW UP

(Reuter's Service)

Washington, Nov. 30.—The British, American and Japanese naval subcommittee at a brief meeting today considered the details of disarmament and adjourned. The day of the next meeting has not been fixed.

It is officially announced that arrangements have been made for the Chinese and Japanese to carry on direct negotiation on the Shantung question. The Far Eastern Committee has adjourned until Friday to give the Chinese and Japanese a clear day to discuss the question.

Japan's desire to increase her ratio of naval strength remains the pivotal question of the proceedings of the Conference. Prince Tokugawa's last statement to the effect that Baron Kato's opinion did not reflect the Japanese official attitude is believed in some quarters to have improved the situation. It is still uncertain whether definite developments will be announced before or after the next plenary meeting.

In the meantime Mr. Balfour and possibly Lord Lee, Sir Auchland Geddes and others of the British delegation propose to attend a dinner in their honor on Monday at New York, given by the English-Speaking Union. Their absence over the weekend will probably prevent a full meeting of the Conference before the middle of next week.

RAILWAY GUARD PLAN

(Reuter's Service)

Washington, Nov. 30.—The Chinese and Japanese delegates have accepted the good offices of Mr. Balfour and Mr. Hughes to bring China and Japan together for the settlement of the Shantung and Kiaochao question.

It is announced that Japan has agreed to withdraw her guards from the Shantung Railway as soon as the Chinese police force is substituted, but she objects to withdrawing them from the South Manchurian Railway on account of the bandit danger.

Mr. Hanihara stated that Japan would remove her troops from Hankow as soon as China took measures to maintain order, and that she was also ready to withdraw them from North China when conditions warranted and from the Chinese Eastern Railway when Siberia was evacuated.

JAPAN STILL HOLDS

Washington, Nov. 30.—The naval sub-committee has concluded its consideration of the facts and figures involved in the "Five-Five-Three" proposal, and will refer the question back to the full committee. No vote was taken. It is understood that the Japanese still hold that Japan was entitled to a higher ratio.

SHELL IN FINE PLACE

(Reuter's Service)

Amsterdam, Nov. 30.—The meeting of the Royal Dutch Company has had to be adjourned until December 14 as a quorum of representatives of three-quarters of the share capital could not be obtained. The General Manager, in his speech, declared that the absolute hard cash position of the Royal Dutch, Shell and affiliated companies might be put at 200,000,000 florins.

The stock in hand was 1,500,000 tons, on which freight, loading and customs charges had already been paid, representing a value of 150,000,000 florins. The Company had no debit with its bankers and was thus well able to cope with all emergencies without appealing to the shareholders.

A Parting Of The Ways For America

BY JOHN DEWEY

(From the New Republic)

THAT the Chinese people, generally speaking, has a less antagonistic feeling towards the United States than towards other powers seems to me an undoubted fact. The feeling has been disturbed at divers times by the treatment of the Chinese upon the Pacific coast, by the exclusion act, by the turning over of our interest in the building of the Peking-Canton (or Hankow) railway to a European group, by the Lansing-Ishii agreement, and finally by the part played by President Wilson in the Versailles decision regarding Shantung. Those disturbances in the main, however, have made them dubious as to our skill, energy and intelligence rather than as to our goodwill. Americans, taken individually and collectively, are to the Chinese—at least such was my impression—a rather simple folk, taking the word in its good and its deprecatory sense. In noting the Chinese reaction to the Pacific Conference, it was interesting to see the combination of an almost unlimited hope that the United States was to lead in protecting them from further aggressions and in rectifying existing evils, with a lack of confidence, a fear that the United States would have something put over on it.

Friendly feeling is, of course, mainly based upon a negative fact, the fact that the United States has taken no part in "leasing" territories, establishing spheres and setting up extra-national post-offices. On the positive side stands the contribution made by Americans to education, especially medical and that of girls and women, and to philanthropy and relief. Politically, there are the early service of Burlingame, the open door policy of John Hay (though failure to maintain it in fact while securing signatures to it on paper has a great deal to do with the Chinese belief in our defective energy) and the part played by the United States in moderating the terms of the settlement of the Boxer outbreak, in addition to a considerable number of minor helpful acts. China also remembers that we were the only nation to take exception to the treaties embodying the Twenty-one Demands. While our exception was chiefly made on the basis of our own interests which these treaties might injuriously affect, a sentiment exists that the protest was a pledge of assistance to China when the time should be opportune for raising the whole question. And without doubt the reservation made on May 16, 1915, by our State Department is a strong card at the Conference if the Department wishes to play it.

From the American standpoint, the open door principle represents one of the only two established principles of American diplomacy, the other being, of course, the Monroe Doctrine. In connection with sentimental or idealistic associations which have clustered about it, it constitutes us in some vague fashion, in both Chinese and American public opinion, a sort of guardian or at least spokesman of the interests of China in relation to foreign powers. Although, the open door policy directly concerns other nations in their relation to China rather than China herself, yet the violation of the policy by other powers has been so frequent and so much to the detriment of China, that American interest, prestige and moral sentiment are now implicated in such an enforcement of it as will redound to the advantage of China.

Citizens of other countries are often irritated by a suggestion of such a relationship between the United States and China. It presents itself as a proclamation of superior national virtue under cover of which the United States aims to establish its influence in China at the expense of other countries. The irritation is exasperated by the fact that the situation as it stands is an undoubted economic and political asset of the United States in China. We may concede without argument any contention that the situation is not due to superior virtue but rather to contingencies of history and geography—in which respect it is not unlike many things that pass for virtues with individuals. The contention may be admitted without controversy because it is not pertinent to the main issue. The question is not so much how the state of affairs came about as what it now is, how it is to be treated and what consequences are to flow from it. It is a fact that up to the present the intelligent self-interest of America has coincided with the interests of a stable, independent and progressive China. It is also a fact that American traditions and sentiments have gathered about this consideration so that now there is widespread conviction in the American people of moral obligations of assistance and friendly protection owed by us to China. At present, no policy can be entered upon that does not bear the semblance of fairness and goodwill.

Among Americans in China and presumably at home there is a strong feeling that we should adopt stronger and more positive policies for the future than we have maintained in the past. This feeling seems to me fraught with dangers unless we make very clear to ourselves in just what respects we are to continue and make good our traditonal policy in a more positive manner. To some extent our past policy has been one of drifting. Radical change in this respect may go further than appears upon the surface in altering other fundamental aspects of our policy. What is condemned as drifting is in effect largely the same thing that is also praised as non-interference. A detailed settled policy, no matter how "constructive" it may appear to be, can hardly help involving us in the domestic policies of China, an affair of factions and a game which the Chinese understand and play much better than any foreigners. Such an involvement would at once lessen a present large asset in China, aloofness from internal intrigues and struggles.

The specific protests of Chinese in America—mainly Cantonese—against the Consortium seem to me mainly based on misapprehension. But their general attitude of opposition nevertheless conveys an important lesson. It is based on a belief that the effect of the Consortium will be to give the Peking government a factitious advantage in the internal conflict which is waging in China, so that to all intents and purposes it will mark a taking of sides on our part. It is well remembered that the effect of the "reorganisation" loan of the prior Consortium—in which the United States was not a partner—was to give Yuan Shih-k'ai the funds which seated him, and the militarist faction after him, firmly in the governmental saddle. Viewing the matter from a larger point of view than that of Canton vs. Peking, the most fundamental objection I heard brought by Chinese against the Consortium was in effect as follows: The republican revolution in China has still to be wrought out; the beginning of ten years ago has been arrested. It remains to fight it out. The inevitable effect of increased foreign financial and economic interest in China, even admitting that its industrial effect was advantageous to China, would be to create an interest in stabilising China politically, which in effect would mean to sanctify the status quo, and prevent the development of a revolution which cannot be accomplished without internal disorders that would affect foreign investiments unfavorably. These considerations are not mentioned for the sake of throwing light on the Consortium: they are cited as an illustration of the probability that a too positive and constructive development of our tradition of goodwill to China would involve us in an interference with Chinese domestic affairs injurious to China's welfare, to that free and independent development in which we profess such interest.

But how, it will be asked, are we to protect China from foreign depredations, particularly those of Japan, how are we to change our nominal goodwill into a reality, if we do not enter upon much more positive and detailed policies? If there was in existence at the present time any such thing as a diplomacy of peoples as distinct from a diplomacy of governments, the question would mean something quite different from what it now means. As things now stand the people should profoundly distrust the politicians' love for China. It is too frequently the reverse side of fear and incipient hatred of Japan, colored perhaps by anti-British feeling.

There should be no disguising of the situation. The aggressive activities of other nations in China, centring but not exhausted at this time in Japan, are not merely sources of trouble to China but they are potential causes of trouble in our own international relationships. We are committed by our tradition and by the present actualities of the situation to attempt something positive for China as respects her international status. To live up to our responsibility is a most difficult and delicate matter. We have on the one side to avoid getting entangled in quasi-imperialistic European policies in Asia, whether under the guise of altruism, of putting ourselves in a position where we can exercise a more effective supervision of their behavior, or by means of economic expansion. On the other side, we have to avoid drifting into that kind of covert or avowed antagonism to European and Japanese imperialism which will only increase friction, encourage a combination especially of Great Britain and Japan—or of France and Japan—against us, and bring war appreciably nearer.

We need to bear in mind that China will not be saved from outside herself. Even if by a successful war we should relieve China from Japanese encroachments, from all encroachments, China would not of necessity be brought nearer her legitimate goal of orderly and prosperous internal development. Apart from the question of how far war can now settle any fundamental issues without begetting others as dangerous, there is the fact that China of all countries is the one where settlement by force, especially by outside force, is least applicable and most likely to be enormously disserviceable. China is used to taking time for her problems: she can neither understand nor profit by the impatient methods of the western world which are profoundly alien to her genius. Moreover, a civilisation which is on a continental scale, which is so old that the rest of us are parvenus in comparison, which is thick and closely woven, cannot be hurried in its development without disaster. Transformation from within is its sole way out, and we can best help China by trying to see to it that she gets the time she needs in order to effect this transformation, whether or not we like the particular form it assumes at any particular time.

A successful war in behalf of China would leave untouched her problems of education, of factional and sectional forces, of political immaturity showing itself in present incapacity for organisation. It would affect her industrial growth undoubtedly, but in all human probability for the worse, increasing the likelihood that she would enter upon an industrialisation which would repeat the worst evils of western industrial life without the immunities, resistances and remedial measures which the west has evolved. The imagination cannot conceive a worse crime than fastening western industrialism upon China before she has developed within herself the means of coping with the forces which it would release. The danger is great enough as it is. War waged in China's behalf by western powers and western methods would make the danger practically irresistible. In addition we should gain a permanent interest in China which is likely to be of the most dangerous character to ourselves. If we were not committed by it to future imperialism, we should be luckier than we have any right to hope to be.

These remarks are negative and vague as to our future course. They imply a confession of lack of such wisdom as would enable me to make positive definite proposals. But at least I have confidence in the wisdom and goodwill of the American and other peoples to deal with the problem, if they are only called into action. And the first condition of calling wisdom and goodwill into effective existence is to recognise the seriousness of the problem and the utter futility of trying to force its solution by impatient and hurried methods. Pro-Japanese apologetics is dangerous; it obscures the realities of the situation. An irritated anti-Japanism that would hasten the solution of the Chinese problem merely by attacking Japan is equally fatal to discovering and applying a proper method.

More specificaly and also more generically, proper publicity is the greatest need. If, as Secretary Hughes has intimated, a settlement of the problems of the Pacific is made a condition of arriving at an agreement regarding reduction and limitation of armaments, it is likely that the Conference might better never be held. In eagerness to do something which will pass as a settlement, either China's—and Siberia's—interests will be sacrificed in some unfair compromise, or irritation and friction will be increased—and in the end so will armaments. In any literal sense, it is ridiculous to suppose that the problems of the Pacific can be settled in a few weeks, or months—or years. Yet the discussion of the problems, in separation from the question of armament, may be of great use. For it may further that publicity which is a precondition of any genuine settlement. This involves public diplomacy. But it also involves a wider publicity, one which will enlighten the world about the facts of Asia, internal and international.

Scepticism about Foreign Offices, as they are at present conducted, is justified. But scepticism about the power of public opinion, if it can be aroused and instructed, to reshape Foreign Office policies means hopelessness about the future of the world. Let everything possible be done to reduce armament, if only to secure a naval holiday on the part of the three great naval powers, and if only for the sake of lessening taxation. Let the Conference on Problems devote itself to discussing and making known as fully and widely as possible the element and scope of those problems, and the fears—or should one call them hopes?—of the cynics will be frustrated. It is not so important that a decision in the American sense of the Yap question be finally and forever arrived at as it is that the need of China and the Orient in general for freer and fuller communications with the rest of the world be made clear—and so on, down or up the list of agenda. The commercial open door is needed. But the need is greater that the door be opened to light, to knowledge and understanding. If these forces will not create a public opinion which will in time secure a lasting and just settlement of other problems, there is no recourse save despair of civilisation. Liberals can do something better than predicting failure and impugning motives. They can work for the opened door of open diplomacy, of continuous and intelligent inquiry, of discussion free from propaganda. To shirk this responsibility on the alleged ground that economic imperialism and organised greed will surely bring the Conference to failure is supine and snobbish. It is one of the factors that may count in leading the United States to take wrong course in the parting of the ways.

-:- Kemal Pasha's Rule -:-

New Turkish Power Defies The Powers And Battles With The Greeks

Some day, when the present Greco-Turkish episode is ended and peace is finally signed, ratified and proclaimed with the Ottoman Empire, it will doubtless be recognised as the ruler of whatever area is ultimately left to the Turks. When recognition finally is given it, a total stranger will enter the family of nations and seat himself in that chair at the council table which once was filled with the dropsical figure of the Sick Man of Europe. For the Sick Man, one may hope, has at last gained that paradise which this troubled world so long denied him.

The West knows little of the Turkish Nationalist Government more than that it is supposed to be run by one Mustapha Kemal Pasha and its capital is Angora, a town more widely known as the home of certain long-haired breeds of cats and goats. Here, however, is its story.

Field Marshal Ghazir Mustapha Kemal Pasha was sent from Constantinople to Sivas as inspector of the Northern Military District of Anatolia in March, 1919. Probably he was sent as a picked man to undertake a specific job, for the Turkish Government in Constantinople, while continuing to obey the armistice terms, was increasingly uneasy about the terms of peace. If he was so despatched by his Government, he threw all recrecy to the winds when the Greeks occupied Smyrna on May 15, 1919. He disregarded Constantinople's frightened demand for his resignation, tore up the armistice which all Turks say the Greek occupation violated, and in company with General Kiazim Pasha, who was stationed at Erzerum, began collecting a ragged mob of deserters, bandits, patriots and refugees which he called the Nationalist Army.

With the vast Alpine massif of Anatolia ringed with British, French, Italian, Greek and Armenian forces, he stood like a rat in a trap and, looking for allies, found the resentful Arabs, the Moslems of Batum, the opposition in Persia, the Kurds and the Azerbaijanis, all of them in about as desperate straits as he was.

The armistice period continued to drag on; the French liked him, the Italians helped him, and the British could prod the Turkish Government at Constantinople into only half-hearted efforts to quiet him. Still the armistice period dragged on, the Greeks took Brussa, the British took Constantinople, the French advanced in the Adana plain and, looking to Russia for help, he began smuggling arms across the Black Sea and digging up huge stores of munitions which the old Russian Army had cached during its prodigious advance into Turkey in 1915 and 1916.

The British now prodded the Sultan in Constantinople so vigorously that the Government of Damad Ferid Pasha, a fiery old Kurd who could fight but couldn't compromise, finally fell and the British had only the Greeks and the permanent loss of Constantinople with which to threaten the rebel Nationalists. Then the Nationalists succeeded in imposing a peace treaty on the Armenians of the Erivan Republic. Wrangel was pushed out of the Crimea, Venizelos was driven out of Athens and the British could not so much as mention the Greeks without further alienating the French.

THE ANGORA GOVERNMENT

In the meantime the ragged rabble which once collected about Ghazir Mustapha Kemal Pasha at Angora has been built up into the complete and functioning Turkish Nationalist Government.

Supreme authority in the Turkish Nationalist Government is vested in a single chamber of 350 elected deputies, called the Grand National Assembly. Of these 350 deputies 337 are sitting in the Legislative Hall at Angora. The remaining thirteen were arrested by the British in Constantinople for internment on Malta, and the Turks say they were not included in the forty Malta interuees whom the British recently liberated at Rome.

The deputies sit for all the constituencies of the old Ottoman Empire, except those of Syria, Egypt, the Arabian peninsula and the Basra and Bagdad provinces of Mesopotamia. The old empire is recognised as lost, and what remains is insisted upon as Turkey proper. The Assembly is considered representative of Thrace, Constantinople, Smyrna, the Adana plain and the Mosul province of Mesopotamia—"areas of the Fatherland under enemy occupation"—as well as of that compact but primitive area which lies between Kars and Mosul and the Black and Mediterranean Seas and which is under the undisputed administration of the Assembly.

The Deputies owe allegiance to the Sultan at Constantinople and the Assembly makes a contribution to the civil list of his Majesty and the imperial family, who at present are "prisoners of an enemy garrison in illegal occupation of the capital." In the Assembly's 1921 budget this contribution is £1,551,012, or roughly $2,775,060; the Turkish pound is normally worth $5. At the same time, the Assembly "knows of no Turkish Government in Constantinople. The so-called Treaty of Sevres was signed by three Turkish subjects who were not accredited by this Government and who have been sentenced to death by this Government for conspiring with the enemy. . . . We know of no Armenia in Turkey; there is only one Armenia, the Republic of Erivan, with whom we have had a peace since Nov. 7 which they deem quite satisfactory. . . . Our relations with the Russian Government are the normal relations of Governments at peace with each other. We are not Bolsheviki and are not likely to be."

The Deputies sit in practically continuous session. During its second year of life, which ended with appropriate speechmaking at Angora on March 2, the Assembly held 311 sessions. It elects its own President and its own Cabinet, both holding office normally for two-year terms. Its President has no power of veto and, like his Cabinet, is immediately responsible to the Assembly which elects him. The Cabinet consists of Ministers for Land and Sea Defense, Foreign Affairs, Revenue (Treasurer General), Audit (Controller General), Interior (including Departments of Refugees, Muhajireen or Moslem emigrants from Christian-occupied territory, Gendarmerie and Police), Post and Telegraphs, Commerce and Industries, Public Health, Sacred Law (the Sheikh-ul-Islamate, which represents the Caliph), Justice, Education and Transport.

Ghazir Mustapha Kemal Pasha is its President, a position roughly analogous to that of Grand Vizier or Prime Minister in the old Turkish Government. He is, however, in no sense a military dictator. The Assembly tried last year to persuade him to accept a dictatorship, but it was his first opportunity to work out the Young Turks' program, and he was not to be deprived of it. He remains President of the Assembly, and the Assembly remains the source of all authority in the Government. He is a slight, erect man of soldierly bearing, with a cropped brown mustache and rather prominent cheekbones. He is predominantly Turkish; rumor has said that there is some Jewish blood in him, but it is thought more probable that his ancestry is somewhere Slavic. He was born of an obscure family in Saloniki only thirty-nine years ago. He was schooled at the Turkish War College in Constantinople, but has traveled widely in Europe and speaks French like a Parisian. He has always been a Young Turk, enough of a Young Turk so that Abdul Hamid sent him to jail and finally exiled him. He commanded one of the two Turkish regiments which marched on Constantinople in the Young Turk revolution of 1908; he saw the revolution pulled down to swift defeat and became the last of the Young Turks, a man without a party and a bitter enemy of the Committee of Union and Progress. When the Turkish armistice was signed, on Oct. 31, 1918, he was Turkey's greatest war hero and a hater of the C. U. P., the Germans and the British alike. And when, on May 15, 1919, he cut loose from Constantinople and found himself facing the victorious Allies alone, like a rat in a trap at Sivas, his chance as a Young Turk had come.

CABINET AND ITS RULE

His Cabinet is headed by Fevzi Pasha, Minister for Land and Sea Defense, who is Premier of a Coalition Cabinet formed on May 11 when Bekir Sami Bey resigned on his return from the London conference. Fevzi Pasha's Chief of Staff in the Defence Ministry is General Ismet Pasha and his Assistant Chief of Staff is General Kiazim Pasha, both pupils of von der Goltz and the Potsdam War College.

While holding at bay and pressing back enemies on every frontier, the Assembly has found time to recreate the whole governmental machinery of Turkish administration.

It has begun by adopting the abrogation of the capitulations which the Turkish Government of Constantantinople decreed shortly after the war began in 1914. The capitulations were the Sick Man's most crippling ailment. They go back to 1535 when Sultan Suleiman the Magnificent granted immunity to certain French merchants as a mark of the royal favor. They were finally ratified in 1675, but during the last century they have proved an anachronism so fearfully abused that by 1914 the Ottoman Empire had become a happy hunting ground for every scoundrelly Levantine who could muster a foreign passport to flourish in the faces of the local Turkish officials.

Having established its sovereignty within its own frontiers, the Assembly last Jan. 24 formulated a new fundamental law for Turkey. This divides its territory along new geographical and economic lines into vilayets (provincial governments), subdivides the vilayets into cazas (subgovernments) and subdivides the cazas into nahieas (communes), thus abolishing the sandjaks into which the vilayets were formerly cut up. Under the new scheme, the vilayet governments take over as many as possible of the Assembly's duties and are grouped into regional inspectorates which link them to the Assembly. The Assembly remains charged with the administration of foreign and domestic affairs, the army and the evkafs (Moslem religious bequests). The valis or governors of vilayets administer with their respective cabinets, schools, courts, farms, public works, sanitation, &c., in their respective jurisdictions. Under each valil, the kaimakems who administer the cazas form a link with the mudirs who keep the peace in their respective nahieas.

The entire governmental hierarchy, from the mudir's council in the smallest village up to the Grand National Assembly itself, rests on a foundation of universal suffrage, Moslems, Christians and Jews voting alike. This is an effort to secularise the new Turkey, to break away from the universal Eastern tradition of theocratic government. To this end, religious courts and religious schools have been taken from the Ministry of Sacred Law and placed under the Ministries of Justic and Education respectively—a much longer step forward than any other Moslem Government has yet taken.

It has tackled its school, railroad and farm problems with an unprecedented vigor. The Ministry of Education has secularised the schools which were built in every Turkish village during the war, and the first courses in its new Turkish University at Angora were opened by Dr. Mouheddin Bey in the Teachers' Training School building on Feb. 5. The Public Works Ministry is building a railway from Erzerum to Erzindjan and rebuilding roads, which connect Angora with Inebolu and Afiun Karahissar with Adalia, Karaman and Selefko. The Commerce and Industries Ministry is selling farm machinery to the peasantry on long-term notes and has made food both abundant and cheap. As for Angora, its municipal corporation is prospering as never before in its centuries of history. Electric lights and telephones have been installed and the National Assembly has put 3,000 well-paid laborers at work erecting up-to-date Government buildings under the direction of a Hungarian architect who has used the Budapest Government buildings as his model. You may see "Hamlet" in Turkish at Angora now, with an Armenian playing Ophelia and a Greek playing the Queen.

But the Ministry of Revenue has achieved what to Westerners will seem the greatest triumph of the Young Turk. The Turkish Nationalist Government is probably the only Government in the world which has paid its way against wars on every frontier, by taxation alone. Debarred from raising money abroad, it has floated no internal loan and has not resorted to the sham of printing paper money. It is still paying its bills with the paper which the old Turkish Government issued durng the war.

Volunteer Corps Notes

GENERAL

The Commandant remarked at the Prize distribution last night that he wishes in future to make the A. R. M. more interesting to those who are not fortunate enough to be in the fore rank as far as musketry is concerned.

He proposes therefore to introduce something on the following general lines for the A. R. M. in October 1922.

There will be four 'classes,' instead of three as at present. The two highest classes only will compete during one week-end, and the two lowest only during the other week-end, the Municipal Challenge Cup being delegated to a third Sunday.

For the two highest classes, the general conditions of the competitions will be on the same lines and at least as difficult as in the recent meeting. For the two lowest classes, though the practices will follow the same lines as for the better classes, the conditions will be easier, i.e. it will be easier for a moderate shot to make a "possible."

The idea of this differentiation of conditions is obvious. More encouragement will be given to second and third class shots to enter for the meeting.

LIGHT HORSE

The Light Horse are opening their Cross Country Season on Sunday, December 11, when a Sealed Handicap will be run off over a course of about 3½ miles. A cup for the winner has been kindly presented by L/Cpl. Tuxford.

The course to be ridden over is as follows:

Start:—Old Handicap Bridge, Brenan Road, Highland Grips, Here and There, Wade Artery Creek, Warren Line, over Platform to the new Jump at Suez, up the Bath Tub Jump, taking all jumps en route, including the Jumps to the right beyond the village by Suez. After the Bath Tub over Barrier Creek platform down Barrier and finish Bee Line.

It will be interesting to see how the Sealed Handicap system works. All riders must start together and their handicap will be taken from the time at which they arrive at the finish.

Missing out of jumps will entail disqualification.

MACHINE GUN COMPANY

The Machine Gun Company continues to boom. On Saturday a "rugger" team conmposed of Machine Gunners and some friends from the Navy succeeded in defeating a fairly strong "Club" side in one of the best games seen in Shanghai recently. This is the first move made by any S. V. C. unit to enter the "rugger" field for some years and, following after the Machine Gunners successes during the past cricket season and at the Henli Autumn Regatta, speaks volumes for the high sporting spirit of the unit. A soccer team has already been entered in the S. V. C. League, and in view of the number of soccer stalwarts in the company, his splendid prospects.

On Thursday last a very successful dinner was held at the Shanghai Club, when Captain Mitchell, on behalf of the unit, presented Captain H. E. Middleton, the late O. C., with a handsome rose bowl, suitably inscribed, as a mark of the Company's esteem and appreciation of the great amount of valuable work done by him during his thirteen years connection with the unit, and particularly during his period in command.

Major-General Sir George Kirkpatrick (G. O. C. China Command) took the opportunity of a short stay in Shanghai last Sunday to inspect the armored car which is now in commission, and expressed his approval of the turn-out. In a very short while now the whole fleet of six cars will be on the strength of the Company, which will then be unique in the world as the only volunteer armored car force. In preparation for this access of strength the training of both Gunners and Drivers is already going on apace, with the high spirit if keenness and efficiency which has always characterised the Machine Gun Company.

"B" COMPANY, BRITISH

The next drill takes place on Tuesday, December 6, at 5:45 p.m. and is one of the drill to count for the Efficiency Shield. All ranks to attend unless unavoidably detained by business. Dress: Drill Order with caps. Muster at the Drill Hall, Foochow Road.

The monthly N. C. Officers mess dinner will take place at 20 Carter Road on Wednesday, December 14, at 8 p.m. Dress: Plain clothes.

Four recruits have joined this month and the strength of the Unit is now 56, a total which it is hoped to increase before the end of the year.

Winter monsoon along the China coast South of the Saddles. Unsteady breezes with local calms in the North. Cloudy but fine weather, clearing up completely in the evenin. Rainy in Formosa.

Dec. 1.—Very fine weather, cool and with some slight mist. High and steady pressure. Northerly breezes.

Wharfage and Landing Charges

Owing to the increased cost of working and maintenance the undermentioned Wharves find it necessary to raise the charges for WHARFAGE, LANDING and DELIVERY, and after careful consideration beg to announce that on and after January 1st, 1922, there will be an increase of 10 per cent. on the present R. S. & D. tariff, dated January 1st, 1920.

STORAGE RATES

Revised STORAGE TARIFFS have been drawn up and are in course of distribution, the new rates applying to all goods not on Landing Accounts or Godown Warrants on January 1st, 1922. Copies will be supplied to all Firms communicating with the various Wharves.

Money And Markets

BUSINESS SITUATION

New York, Oct. 19.—The last thirty days have been characterised by slowly improving sentiment and by some expansion of production. The most marked gains have naturally been in those lines where recovery has been the longest delayed. Bituminous coal production is increasing, and while partially seasonal, this to some extent is due to enlarged operations in the iron and steel industry, which is now running at about 40 percent of capacity. There has been less change in the rate of production of other leading industries, but gains made since midsummer have so far held. Activity in the building trades is well maintained.

Autumn buying is reflected in an improved retail dry-goods trade. It is noteworthy that this betterment is more marked in rural districts than in industrial centers. This is clearly the result of the marketing of cotton and grain crops at fairly satisfactory prices, and affords grounds for confidence that the extreme depression in the agricultural industry of the United States has definitely passed.

Wholesale prices of a number of raw materials have advanced since September 15, while the markets in several lines have been somewhat more active. Caution on the part of the wholesale trade has served to keep the volume of manufacturers' advance orders small, but frequent repetition of orders for immediate delivery has thus far served to render the present basis of operations fairly stable. There is no doubt that the improvement which has thus far taken place is more or less seasonal in character, but it is nevertheless true that the progress made toward normal business is sound. Such temporary setback as may occur after the autumn buying should, therefore, bring no discouragement. Viewing conditions as a whole, the facts justify conservative optimism as to the future.

Foreign Versus Domestic Markets

Exports of wheat, cotton, copper and other raw materials have placed the United States in a dominant position in the world commodity markets. Natural resources and modern methods of production have enabled the United States to produce more commodities of those classes than the domestic market could consume, at prices enabling the American producer to meet competitors in the international markets.

The United States is not sufficiently dependent on foreign markets to justify the belief that business recovery in this country must await recovery abroad. At prices determined in the international markets American raw materials for export will find an outlet. By far the greater part of the entire manufactured product of the country has always been sold at home and as price adjustments are completed, the domestic market will again absorb the major portion of our production.

It is true that the buying power of the domestic consumer has been much curtailed. High taxes have cut heavily into the sums which might have been spent for clothing, furniture and all those articles which have made the life of the average American family so rich in comforts and luxuries. Declines in the prices of agricultural products and widespread unemployment have reduced the buying ability of a large part of the population, and high rents, high fuel costs and high transportation charges have operated in the same direction. Many of these items represent temporary maladjustment, and their effects will gradually lessen and tend to disappear.

Another factor of great significance which cannot be overlooked is the growing spirit of thrift. In the United States, as elsewhere, much extravagance undoubtedly resulted from the period of high wages and high profits. It is nevertheless true that large sections of the public took advantage of the opportunty to establish savings accounts and to begin the purchase of homes, while the wide distribution of Liberty bonds familiarised many with investments in securities. Except in a few areas the widespread and severe unemployment has not materially reduced savings bank deposits, while in some localities steady gains in such deposits have been made throughout the period of depression. Sharp curtailment of income has impressed the necessity of saving on many who failed to take advantage of temporarily higher incomes. Economy has become fashionable. The time has passed when any considerable section of the public will buy egardless of cost. Sales policies based on a belief that buying can be stimulated by artificial methods and that another era of extravagant buying can be induced under present conditions will not succeed.

The American consumer, however, has suffered no material permanent curtailment of purchasing power. Goods of all kinds, in large volume, can be sold in every part of the United States today, if they are staple in character, and if prices are such as to represent real values to conservative purchasers. As the volume of goods thus sold expands, employment will automatically increase and, in turn, new purchasing power will develop. The domestic market assures the American producer of an outlet.

Hongkong Shares

Messrs. Moxon and Taylor of Hongkong write as follows in their weekly share report dated, Hongkong, Nov. 25.

We have had a quiet market during the past week but at the close there was a rather better tone with more enquiry all round.

The Shanghai Market has been very quiet with prices mostly nominal.

The improvement in rubber has been maintained.

The following are the principal alterations since last week.

Cantons: Are still in demand and after business done at $442½ closed with sales and buyers at $445.

Unions: Are unchanged and some business has been done at $243.

China Sugars: Show some decline with sales at $188.

Cements: Have been quiet during the week but towards the close after small business done at $25¼ buyers are showing more interest at $25¾.

Humphreys: Are wanted at $10½.

Shanghai Docks: Are nominal, at Tls. 119.

Star Ferries: Have been the medium of considerable business at prices ranging from $35 to $40½ but close easier with sellers at $39.

Hongkong Ropes: Have advanced steadily during the present month up to $38/39½ at which price a fair business has been done, but close rather quieter.

Shell Transports: Have changed hands at 90/-.

BANKS IN HARBIN READY TO MEET ALL EMERGENCIES

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Harbin, Nov. 26.—The Taoyin of Harbin, Mr. Chang Shao-cheng, after a through investigation into the financial position of the note issuing Banks on the 22nd instant issued a public notice in which he states:

"As a run has taken place on the local Chinese note-issuing banks during the last few days as a result of the run on the Government Banks in Peking and Tientsin, I have called a Conference of the local bankers and ordered them to raise immediately all necessary funds to meet the demand of the public. I have also appointed a delegation to inspect the reserve of the note-issuing bankes for the purpose of ascertaining their actual conditions.

"The results of this investigation are published hereunder:

"Notes to the amount of $151,000 were redeemed on November 21, which sum was somewhat larger than that of any of the previous days since the occurrence of the run, due to the closing of the banks on the 20th. The situation was much easier on November 22 the amount redeemed being only about half of that of the 21st, consisting mostly of small holders.

"The Bank of Communications has again received $200,000, in specie and expects to receive in the course of this week sum amounting to $700,000 or $800,000.

"The Bank of China expects the arrival today (November 22) of specie in the sum of $300,000 also a consignment of gold bar amounting to 5,700 zolotniks.

"The Bank of the Three Eastern Provinces has completed arrangement in Mukden to ship large amount of specie which will arrive in two or three days.

"The Kwang Hsin Bank has in reserve funds in excess of the $400,000 notes it has in circulation.

"The total amount of specie now held in the vaults of the above-mentioned banks and the specie expected to arrive this week is estimated to be approximately $10,000,000, which sum as compared with the amount of notes in circulation, will constitute a reserve of 90 percent.

"The above-mentioned banks are handling remittances to other points as usual, although the rate charged is higher. As a matter of fact the Banks are now doing a large business of remittance.
